Troopers Rushed To Port

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — Governor Donald Russell has ordered state troopers moved into this Atlantic port city where six policemen and a fireman were injured in racial violence Tuesday night.

Russell, promising that "law and order will be maintained in South Carolina," also placed on the alert certain unidentified National Guard units. Agents of the crack State Law Enforcement Division already were on hand.

Nearly 100 Negroes in jail as a result of violence Tuesday night refused to identify themselves to police. They were believed to include Rev. R. D. Quincey Newman, field secretary.

Rally Backed By Kennedy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy said Wednesday the planned massive Negro rally in the U.S. capital next month was in the American tradition of liberty.

But he warned against violence-marked demonstrations such as those in Cambridge, Md.

"I have warned against demonstrations that could lead to violence, to bloodshed, I warn against it now," the president told his news conference.

Marchers Clash With Police

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chanting, singing Negro and white integration demonstrators clashed with police Wednesday night in a pushing and shoving melee in front of the Chicago board of education building.

Three demonstrators — two Negroes and one white man — were arrested. A 10-year-old Negro girl was injured when she was hurled to the sidewalk and three policemen suffered minor injuries.

B.C.'s Whopping Surprise

$40,000,000 SURPLUS

By TERRY HAMMOND
Colonist Legislative Reporter

The B.C. government ended its fiscal year March 31 with a whopping $40,600,000 cumulative surplus in spite of a $15,500,000 contingency not included in the 1962-63 budget.

If the province had not paid off the outstanding debt on the Agassiz, Nelson and Kelowna bridges so it could lift the tolls from them the surplus would have been $36,100,000.

All-Time Record

As it is, the surplus figure is an all-time record for B.C. and came at the end of a year in which the soundness of provincial finances was seriously questioned in certain business circles.

In his 1962 budget speech Premier Bennett forecast spending of $356,100,000 and revenue of $336,000,000.

The deficit, he stated, would be made up out of an accumulated surplus which he estimated at $20,700,000.

Spent $350,000,000

But he only spent $350,000,000 and into this he squeezed the $15,500,000 toll bridge payment which was not contemplated until the year was half over.

This means that last summer's "little austerity plan" in B.C. government circles was no myth, neither was it so little.

Cut by $21,600,000

The premier had shaved about $21,600,000 off the year's estimates.

To further sweeten the pot, Premier Bennett discovered two months after the 1962 budget speech that the cumulative surplus was not $20,700,000 as expected, but $28,700,000.

Now it turns out that his revenue prediction was on the conservative side as well. His $336,000,000 estimate turned out to be $369,900,000 in cold cash—a bonus of $25,900,000.

Picked Up Bridge Tab

So his 1962-63 "deficit" budget produced an $11,900,000 surplus and picked up the $15,500,000 tab for the bridges as well.

The accumulated surplus which was going to bail out the "deficit" was left untouched and now goes into the pot with the $11,900,000 to produce the $40,600,000 cumulative surplus which exists today.

Two Questions Remain

Two questions still remain unanswered:

- Where did the premier cut $21,600,000 from estimated expenditures?
- Where did the $25,900,000 in extra revenues spring from?

For the answers the public will have to wait for two further instalments.

Some additional details will come out at the end of this month when the annual review of provincial resources will be available. Full details won't come until August with the release of abridged public accounts.

Magnitude of the cumulative surplus was indicated in a prospectus released earlier this week in connection with a refunding issue of parity bonds.

Gaglardi Keeping Ahead of Sheriff

Wilkinson, sheriff of Victoria County, says he's been trying to serve Gaglardi a legal document for nearly two months.

"But he's been out of town or tied up. He's a very busy man."

The document concerns a suit filed May 11 by Montana contractor Dick Holworth involving alleged irregularities on a Creston highway project.

Moscow Scowls

Futile Finish Is Near But What's the Score?

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet-Chinese ideological negotiations appear to be sliding toward a futile finish.

A session Wednesday was wrapped in the usual secrecy, but reports circulated that the negotiators argued about a final communique, which may be issued this weekend. According to one report, there will be no meeting today, but one on Friday.

None of the reports could be confirmed.

Moscow Smiles

Quick Accord Possible On Limited Test Ban

MOSCOW (AP)—Russian, British and American negotiators announced Wednesday night they have "made progress in drafting some of the provisions" for a treaty banning nuclear tests in the atmosphere, space and under water.

The announcement, set forth in a three-power communique after the third day of negotiations, gave some promise of a quick agreement on a limited test ban that might open the way for East-West security talks and possibly a summit conference.

The communique presented the first official word that the projected treaty would exclude underground tests, the detection and inspection of which are in dispute, and that the drafting stage had been reached. The negotiating teams — led by U.S. State Undersecretary W. Averell Harriman, Science Minister Lord Hailsham of Britain and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko — met for three hours and 10 minutes Wednesday and planned to meet again today.

The apparently fast pace lent new force to prospects that with the limited test-ban agreement might come a quick easing of East-West tensions and a mutual Russian-American declaration of non-aggression.

American sources have said President Kennedy may be willing to sign such a declaration if an acceptable test-ban agreement is worked out.

A possibility that the talks had gone far enough to involve European security discussions was indicated by the unexpected arrival in Moscow of a delegation of Communist East German officials led by Lotar Bolz, deputy premier and foreign minister.

Death Car Kills Baby

TORONTO (CP) — A 15-month-old boy was crushed to death Wednesday when a car with a dead man at the wheel tore the baby's stroller from the hands of its mother and slammed it against a pillar. Dead are Gavin Brett and William C. Carthy, 38, who died of a heart attack.

BULLETIN

Three people were taken to hospital, one believed in critical condition, following a head-on crash early today on the Patricia Bay Highway near Keating Creek Road.

Central Spanish police had not released names of the victims at press time, but it was understood the seriously-injured man was driving alone in one car and a man and his wife were in the other.

All were taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital.

China Hit By Typhoon

TOKYO (AP) — Typhoon Wendy hit Fukien province in Red China Wednesday, the New China News agency reported. The broadcast, monitored here, gave no damage report. Instead, it said: "The rains will be beneficial to growth of semi-late rice, late rice and other autumn crops."

Police-Army Feud Leads To Killings

VIENNA, Austria (AP)

—Diplomatic sources reported Wednesday a policeman killed a soldier and, in revenge, soldiers killed seven policemen in the Soviet Ukrainian town of Krivoy Rog. The Soviet government then imposed martial law and a curfew to prevent further bloodshed, the sources said. They said the killings took place in mid-June.

NORAD Briefing

MPs Told 'Some' Secrets

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (UPI) — A group of Canadian parliamentarians, led by Defence Minister Paul Hellyer, received an "extensive" briefing Wednesday on the operations of the North American Air Defence Command.

The group, mostly members of the House of Commons special defence committee, arrived from Ottawa amid controversy over how much information they would be given during their one-day tour of NORAD headquarters.

An authoritative source said, however, that most of the controversy was "misguided." Canadians "They won't be told every secret, but then neither are all the people who work here."

Defence System Trip Also Given Soviet Spy

OTTAWA (CP)—Col. Bill Wemmerstrom, arrested in Sweden as a Soviet spy for 12 years, was shown the inner workings of the North American air defence system, an informed source said Tuesday. Wemmerstrom was Swedish military attaché in Washington and Ottawa and visited the Canadian capital several times a year between 1952 and 1957.

Dispute 'Misguided'

One committee member, New Democrat Harold Winch, had complained the group would be denied "secret" information which he felt was necessary for its probe into Canadian defence policy.

There were reports that NORAD officers might withhold some information because the Canadians had not undergone a formal security check. In Ottawa, however, Secretary of State J. W. Pickersill said there was no question of imposing such a check on members of Parliament.

U.S. Deficit Less By Millions

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy announced Wednesday the budget deficit for the U.S. government year just closed was $6,200,000,000 or $2,600,000,000 less than his estimate in January.

The president said the lower figure was attributable to spending cuts throughout the executive branch and higher tax revenues generated by the strong business recovery.

This, he said, emphasizes the U.S. need for greater employment, income and profits to bring an eventual balance.

Caution Needed

AMONG A NUMBER of European NATO nations—particularly within West Germany—there was until recently a growing assumption that the widening rift between the Soviet Union and Communist China could bring nothing but good to the Western alliance.

It is to be hoped that this fallacious and altogether dangerous view has now been replaced by the sober recognition that Red China poses as great a threat and problem to the democracies as it does to the Communist state of Russia.

The free world would be deluding itself indeed if it imagines it would emerge unscathed should the present conflict between Peking and the Kremlin erupt into violence.

Even if the Sino-Russian dialectical dispute results in the peaceful establishment of two separate and independent Communist camps—each following its own doctrine and each vying with the other for domination of the Communist world—the West stands to benefit little.

Through this course seems the most likely one to eventuate from the present situation it would be foolish to expect as its result any relaxation in the Soviet Union's expressed goal of eventual world leadership.

True, it would not be wishful thinking to expect the U.S.S.R. to make certain overtures toward the West should this come about. It may even be anticipated that Russia would be prepared to make certain concessions toward lessening the existing East-West tensions. Premier Khrushchev may already be preparing the way for such a development now through his obvious show of camaraderie towards the British and American representatives attending the nuclear test-ban discussions in Moscow.

Whether this be so or not, the West should not be too quick to forget its earlier and near-disastrous experiences with the U.S.S.R. during and immediately following the Second World War when the Russians proved themselves to be valuable and heroic allies—but for just as long as it suited them.

On the Waterfront

THE Pearson administration must recollect with some wryness that the Norris commission was appointed by the previous government but the legacy contained in the justice's scathing report on waterfront conditions on the Great Lakes leaves it little alternative but to initiate immediate steps to cure a condition severely inimical to the free flow of shipping and the economy of the nation.

The violence that may erupt from inter-labor rivalry is nothing new but Judge Norris has painted a picture of lawlessness that has reduced Great Lakes shipping to chaos and demands the intervention of superior government authority. In particular and in language not normal to judicial utterance he has denounced the SIU leader, Hal C. Banks, as a tyrant ruthless in the exploitation of his own power, and recommended his removal from office.

How far and how quickly the government can go in carrying out his varying proposals remains to be seen. It will have political cause for some hesitation and a condition of affairs which has developed openly over the years can scarcely be cured overnight, but the federal labor minister has promised early action designed to bring order into being on the waterfronts.

The far-reaching recommendation of a trusteeship for the maritime unions involved has been accepted in principle although with some reservation by the president of the Canadian Labor Congress, who views with distaste the idea of such supervisory control, which in any event could only be temporary and would call for an equal degree of co-operation from the shipping companies concerned, themselves not free from criticism in the Norris report.

Also needful to restore harmony and ensure future maritime peace is the interest and mutual concern of American government and labor authorities in view of the international tie-up of labor unions, and the influence of the International Joint Commission to help prevent shipping disruption on the Great Lakes, and for that matter elsewhere on the dual national waterfronts.

The corrective problems are not easily to be solved but the concerted efforts of government and labor leaders on both sides of the line are invited to bring an end to the present grave and intolerable unrest for the protection alike of the shipping industry and the men who man the ships.

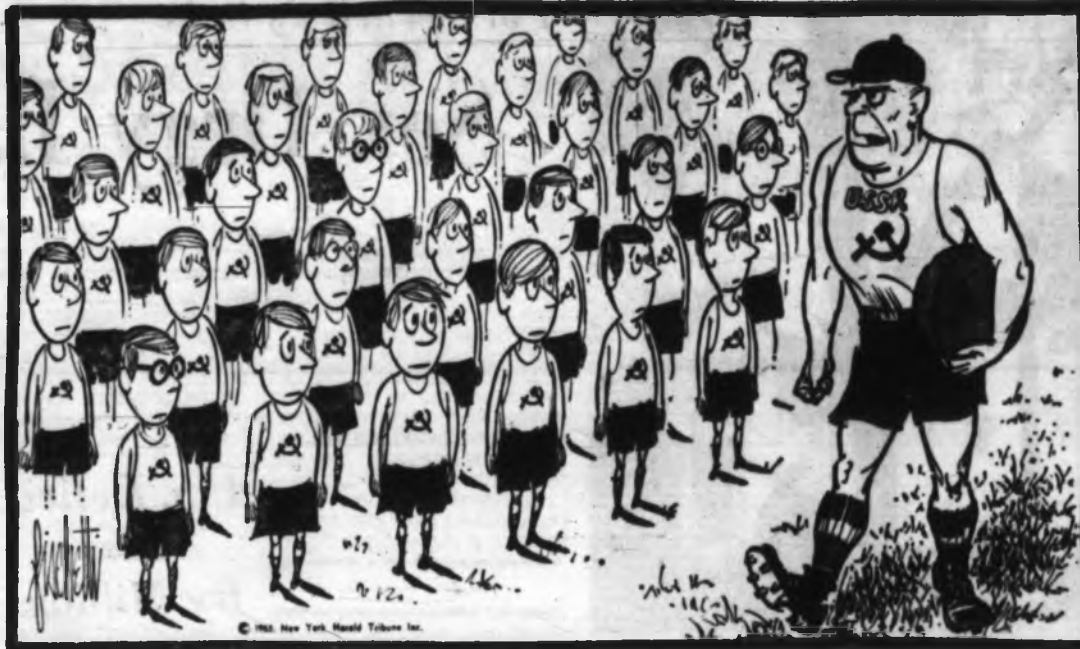

Sensible Steps

ATTORNEY-GENERAL Bonner says the provincial government is trying to take an intelligent look six or seven years ahead in planning to overhaul the Police and Prisons Regulation Act. He refers specifically to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police wishing to withdraw in due course from municipal duty, and presumably he also has in mind the continuing growth of urban centres in that period. In both respects he would seem to be taking sensible initial steps in paving the way for amalgamation of police forces in the metropolitan areas and for uniform standards of police training and qualifications throughout the province.

The makeup of the RCMP does not adapt it favorably to urban policing, according to Mr. Bonner, and this can readily be seen in some respects to be true. It would seem a waste of capability for instance to have Mounties on local traffic and parking control assignment. The national force also is designed to be mobile; municipal service invites continuity in one place. Thus as British Columbia's small towns increase in size replacement of RCMP contingents with municipal forces is a natural consequence, and it is of provincial importance that definite standards should be met.

Nor does it make for efficiency—and value—to have four police forces, one also serving as a fire department, in the Greater Victoria area, and a similar situation in the complex of Greater Vancouver municipalities. Co-operation is good among the forces, and there is some virtue in having policemen who know the people of their localities and their habits which is possible in small districts, but a combined force would certainly be better equipped to take care of any emergency and to handle criminal investigation.

These plans no doubt portend additional cost. That is something that will have to be accepted however if policing is to be adequate. It is only to be hoped that as this is a matter of provincial concern, the whole additional load will not fall on municipal property-owners as such.

"You'd BETTER be tough. The world you'll live in will be FILLED with Chinese and Kennedy."

Thinking Aloud

... of shoes, and ships, and sealing wax ...

By TOM TAYLOR

A LITTLE while back we pondered the color of an emperor's skin, apropos the thesis in the U.S. Congress that Negroes didn't have the wit to govern themselves.

With the alternative that if in fact the pigment of Lucius Septimus Severus, who lived so long ago as to make the matter academic, surely, was indeed white, he wasn't much good anyway.

A modification that scarcely backs the argument.

It happens that a note to hand bespeaks the Venerable Bede's view of Severus' antecedents, pointing out that Bede said this Roman emperor was born in Africa but did not say he was, thereby, a Negro.

Possibly, you see, he was born in Tripolitania because his parents were there on a visit. Many a man even to this day has his status put in jeopardy merely because his mother was away from home when he appeared on this mortal scene. I knew a man some years ago, English to the root of his being, who could enter the U.S. only on the Russian quota because his folks happened to be in Petrograd, as it was then, when he was born.

As to Severus himself, he is cited by other authorities as having "kept" his African pronunciation all his life, and he was at least 18 years old before he first saw Rome. If his skin was darkened only by the sun and not the genes of heredity, therefore, the U.S. Congress was under a understandably under some confusion.

Bede, too, I understand, said that while harsh he ruled boldly, a statement that puts to rest perhaps the quality of his rule, white or black. But having kept his accent that would betray him, or putting it in more proper perspective—people even to this day 1700 years later, you know, hang on to their accents—reveal his distinction. It is the early years of environment that put their marks on a person.

An English international soccer team found this out when its centre-forward was drawn from north of the Tweed, the simple but effective rule of birth determining the choice of national selection in British football. His colleagues were asked if they understood his style of play and they replied yes, but they couldn't understand his tongue.

His mother, too, had been in foreign parts when he was born, albeit in this case there was no argument about the color of his skin. Birth certificates do not tell the whole story, as you can deduce. It is in schooling, the society in which one lives, the message one absorbs, that colors one's personality even if it leaves his hue intact. And most men see no reason to "give up" their accent unless it changes itself unconsciously as the years go on.

Not many men become emperors in any case, or imagine for a moment that centuries later someone will be debating either their pronunciation, place of birth, or skin color as reason for the generality of the fitness of a race.

There won't have been a color that hasn't at one time or another in the pages of history trod the stage of imperial greatness. If he is aware of his entry into the record of the U.S. Congress, Severus must reflect on the strange ways of posterity.

He might even plume himself a little higher, of course, to think that his Roman rule should be cited as a criterion of capacity in the affairs of another and later great world power.

If there is any moral to all this it is that not only should a person choose his parents wisely but he should ensure that when the ascendance comes his birth certificate should list ancestry and racial color as well as place.

Although how that is to be done not even the Venerable Bede, let alone yours truly, could venture to say.

I NTERESTING, perhaps even amusing, to see how Social Credit as a political force in the Commons has swung the full cycle in only a few months. This apart altogether from the comic—or, depending on your personal viewpoint, the tragic—aspects of the cornucopia cut by the "Crazy Caouette Kids," as the "Creditists" of the party's volatile Quebec wing are known.

It was little more than six months ago, at the turn of the year, that Social Credit was the prop and pillar, at once the hope and despair of Prime Minister Diefenbaker's short-lived Conservative minority government.

Now they're supporting Prime Minister Pearson's minority Liberal administration, and getting into this new government's hair just as irritatingly as in the old regime's.

Dangerous View

Irksome Frontiers

From The Ottawa Journal

THE Russian poet who has been causing his Soviet leaders the most embarrassment is Yevgeny Yevtushenko. It has been to poets of his new school that much of the official wrath over new directions in art has been directed.

Only some of Mr. Yevtushenko's poetry is available in English. One stanza has recently been published in The New York Times. It is this:

These frontiers are a nuisance, and it irks me
To know not Buenos Aires or New York,
I'd love to wander freely around London,
And talk with one and all, and talk and talk,
And jump from bus to bus like any Cockney,
And savor Paris in the early dawn.

The young poet may not, in this sampling at least, be up to the standards of the world's greatest poets. But his lines make it easy to understand why Russian officialdom is worried. And they also give us reason for hope that one day Mr. Yevtushenko or his children will visit London or New York and talk and talk.

Today In History

By The Canadian Press

The revolt by troops supporting Gen. Franco broke out in Morocco 27 years ago today—in 1936—to herald the Spanish Civil War. Almost simultaneously revolts broke out in Cadix, Seville, Malaga and Madrid and a few days later Franco set up a provisional insurgent government.

1918—The Second Battle of the Marne was fought in the First World War.

Washington Calling

Strategy Prepared

By MARQUE CHILDS

NO one in these deeply troubled times accuses the U.S. Congress of any pronounced skill in political engineering. With all its antiquarian inheritance of seniority, not to say senility, it becomes a favorite whipping boy for every failure.

But some careful strategic planning has gone into preparing for passage of President Kennedy's far-reaching civil rights program. If it can be pulled off, and at this point there is considerable optimism, the program will be adopted in its basic form, including the public accommodation provision.

An important element in the strategy is timing. The threat hanging so darkly in the air has been a coincidence of events. The massive civil rights demonstration in Washington on Aug. 28 would occur as the Senate was caught up in the emotional tension of a Bill.

Temper would be strained by prolonged session and inflammatory speech-making.

The Negro demonstrators would react to these emotions as the extremists fanned the flames for their own personal and ambitious ends. The peril legislative leaders have said in private, is that with a demonstration getting out of hand the Congress would simply go home. That would leave a vacuum to be filled by increasing violence growing out of a sense of hopelessness and frustration.

The plan is to have the civil rights measure acted on first in the House. The bill—happily it would come up after the House has acted on a tax cut—could be cleared by late August or early September. Speaker John McCormack and Majority Leader Carl Albert have told the president that this is not beyond the bounds of possibility. They are cautiously optimistic.

Then the measure, as passed by the House, would come before the Senate. The strategy is to pass virtually the same bill. By retaining amendments and holding to the straight line of the basic program obstructionism can be kept to a minimum. Under this plan the movement of truth for the Senate would come after the Labor Day weekend, probably around Sept. 15.

A few bits of comic relief have broken the seriousness of the strategy sessions. At one point it was suggested that the public accommodation provision be separated from the other parts of the program and introduced independently. Sen. Hubert Humphrey, the Democratic whip, was asked if he would not like the privilege of introducing it. He responded with the Lincoln story about the man being ridden out of town on a rail who was overheard to say that if it were not for the honor he would rather walk.

Spitting off the most controversial part of the measure and thereby making it vulnerable to separate attack was never seriously considered. And all hands concerned deny there is any intention to strike a compromise eliminating the public accommodation provision in order to obtain passage of the rest of the program.

Conscientious leaders in Congress have been keenly aware of a dilemma obscured by the passionate intensity of the advocates, both Negro and white, of racial equality. Which is more important, they ask, the right to eat a hamburger at an integrated lunch counter or helping in a variety of ways, economic and educational, to raise the capacity of the Negro so that he can compete in the job market?

The answer of the Negro leaders is plain enough: they are equally important. But in Congress the fear of those who want an equitable solution, is that one may defeat the other. The prolonged emotional struggle over a civil rights program can sidetrack increased vocational education, area redevelopment, mass transit and even a tax cut—all measures to help expand the economy and thereby increase job opportunities.

The enemies of any legislative advance in civil rights can use this threat. They have begun to do so already. A prolonged struggle over the civil rights program puts in jeopardy the measures the administration feels are essential to raise the level of the economy. It is in a stagnant economy that the Negro at the bottom of the jobless heap finds it difficult or impossible to improve his lot.

There can be no question but that the congressional system as it has grown up over the years makes action difficult. If not impossible. But both the deep divisions and the inertia reflect, as congressional leaders are also aware, the state of the nation.

The Packack

Simple Rules

By GREGORY CLARK

SPEAKING of cigarettes, it is a long time since I smoked one. I'm a pipe man. More cigarette smokers would go to the pipe if they knew a few little simple rules. For example, many say that they tried a pipe, but it burned their tongue. Well, they smoked too hard the first few times. Surely, their tongue stung. So do your hands blister a bit when you first take up golf. Sometimes your feet hurt in new shoes. A pipe must be introduced to the tongue with discretion.

Second: no pipe stem fits all teeth. There are pipe repair men in all big communities to whom you go with a new pipe and discuss it with him. He grinds the stem a little bit here, a little bit there, until you have got it exactly comfortable. From then on, you have the specifications for all your future pipes. Third: when nobody is in the kitchen, sneak in and dip your finger in the honey jar and smear a little honey inside the bowl of a new pipe. This accelerates the formation of carbon in the bowl, and all is dry and cozy from there on.

When I got aboard a bus yesterday with my pipe in hand, it might have been exuding a little aroma. A lady passenger scolded me.

"You ought to know better than to smoke," said she.

But she and her husband got off the bus before I could think up my retort. It was:

"Ma'am, what do you let your husband do?"

Virtues Overlooked

The Scholastic Hurdles

By CASSANDRA from London

I AM a nightmare man. Not only do I suffer from these nocturnal raves, but I am so well versed in them and know them so well that I can stand appalled in the wings as the relentless foreseen plot goes on.

Yesterday I saw a photograph of the dream that I dreamed so many years ago—only this time it was multiplied a thousandfold. It was a picture of part of a crowd of 2,800 French teenagers sitting in a vast hall at Nice taking the French equivalent of the British O Level Examination. Over there they call it the BEPC—the Brevet Élémentaire du Premier Cycle.

All the candidates crouched at identical tiny trestle tables with pens to the right of them and paper in front of them to prove that they were better than the next boy and girl.

I used to know this moment of pre-examination agony and I still live it again in my bad dreams.

It depends on what you can scribble on a few pieces of paper in a space of two or three hours in response to hostile, tricky questions put by examiners whom you have never met, and who have not the slightest concern as to who or what you are.

They are the Opposition. Black-gowned, scholastic, impersonal interrogators who probe into your quivering young life with questions about Trigonometry, the Latitude of Cape Cod and Boyle's Law.

Or raw students in frayed tweed jackets anxious to earn 1s 6d a whop for coming and correcting a paper in record time.

The idea that young people can be sorted out for success in the future, either in a vast hall in the south of France or in the lesser examination rooms of the local British grammar school, by a pen-to-paper investigation, seems rubbish to me.

I remember so well in my tender formative years how we schoolchildren—the London Matriculation was the Ordinal by Scholastic Fire—were absolutely dominated by the test as to whether we should gain a pass, or a pass with Honors.

I can say that I never heard of the successful high jumpers leaping the scholastic hurdles again in after-life.

What was overlooked then, as is overlooked now, is that a boy or girl with real character, which has nothing to do with the solution of quadratic equations, always forged ahead.

Fortitude, courage, steadfastness and even stubbornness yes, but no mass academic examination will reveal these conquering virtues.

I do not raise the flag of dances, but many a strong and good heart beats below the pass level.

I know. I was there to watch my betters.

VISITORS from overseas are crowding into Britain. Americans jostle with Aussies and Scandinavians mingle with Germans.

Even the French are here, minus the blessing of President de Gaulle, of course.

You see and hear these friendly foreigners wherever you go and at a rough estimate there are 350,000 of them here right now.

They get around at high speed and soon cotton-on to our slightly peculiar way of life—a mode of living that becomes very odd indeed on Sundays.

How do you explain to an American that you can buy that by law you must not buy tinned peas?

How do you tell an Italian that he can buy himself a fresh peach on the Sabbath—if he can find one—but not a tinned peach?

What is the reason you give to a Belgian when he asks why he can watch a play on television on the Lord's Day but not in the theatre; that he can go to a shop and get himself a loaf of bread in a tin but not tinned fresh cream; newspapers but not books or stationery—except at main railway station bookstalls?

We keep our senses on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

But rarely on Sunday.

THAT old gag about standing close to a pillar box, listening near the slot and then ordering the inevitable crowd to keep quiet because there's somebody inside, has come true.

A little boy, Kevin Spearn, who lives in Birmingham, found a GPO pillar box open, ripped inside and had the door slammed on him by an obliging chum.

The friendly policeman who helped to get him out played ball, too.

He said to Kevin: "Next time you post yourself don't forget the three penny stamp."

I claim this story with that other old quirk whereby you are host at a meal to two strangers who have never met.

Before they meet, you take each party aside and say: "This chap you are going to meet is unfortunately very deaf and you'll have to shout very loud at him for he refuses to wear a deaf aid. Don't be shy. Just bellow."

The resulting stentorian conversation is said to be pleasing for those who care for this sort of drollery.

Russians Should Become Europeans

By HENRY FARRIE of the Daily Express, London

Prime Minister Harold Macmillan has vividly outlined to me the reasons why he holds such high hopes of the nuclear test-ban talks now taking place in Moscow.

"I can't think of anything more important at this time," he said, "either in itself or for East-West relations generally."

"The fact is that since 1959 there has been a detente between East and West, not in treaties or documents, but in tone. Neither side has pressed its case unreasonably."

"This has happened at every level—even if it is only the Russian ballet coming to London or British students going to Moscow."

"And what it all amounts to is a new, very important, achievement."

that the Russians should become Europeans.

"It may take a generation or two. But even in the last 10 years they have become a much more modern society—I suppose we would like to say a much more bourgeois society—and this is the sort of thing that inevitably leads to a slackening of tension in spite of the cold war which goes on—the spy activities, and so on."

The prime minister outlined why a test-ban agreement is so important at the moment.

"Of course," he said, "we would like a comprehensive ban, but it would be worth getting even a partial ban."

"One actual agreement would symbolize the detente which everyone knows has taken place, but which it is difficult for any of us to grasp until the test-ban talks are well advanced."

Bourgeois Society Forming

The prime minister discussed the implications of the dispute between the Russian and Chinese Communists.

He thought it was "essentially a theological dispute which centres on the Marxist-Leninist idea that there must be an inevitable war between the communist and capitalist worlds."

This is how he said he explained it to Mr. Khrushchev: "The early Christians, in the first century, acted and preached in accordance with their belief that the end of the world and the second coming were imminent."

"Then after a century they had to recognize that the world was not about to come to an end and that the second coming was not imminent."

"So they had to adapt their theology, and start to build a church which would last in a world that was not going to come to an end."

Macmillan told me: "It is much the same in the theological dispute that is now going on in the communist world."

"They have to adapt their theology to a world in which the idea of inevitable conflict is nonsense. Nuclear weapons have at least produced a position in which it is clear that no one can win."

The prime minister next gave his definition of the "special relationships" between Britain and America.

"I don't like the phrase," he said, "but what I mean by it is that in discussions with America we can start the argument three-quarters of the way down the course."

"I think people often underestimate how close the contacts between Britain and America are at every level."

Pretender de Gaulle's Successor?

By DON SHANNON
From Paris

Henri d'Orleans, the Count of Paris, would be king of France if the monarchy were restored.

Few Frenchmen believe the Count will ever wear a crown, but many wonder about persistent rumors that President de Gaulle would like to install him as the next president.

The rumors began last year when de Gaulle summoned the Count to a conference at the Elysee Palace. Subsequent meetings have been reported but never officially acknowledged.

Last month, at a memorial mass for Pope John XXIII, the Count sat just behind de Gaulle in the Cathedral of Notre Dame. The rumor started the rounds again. And when de Gaulle, in the course of his provincial tour in June, began talking about a possible successor, the royal candidate's name entered the speculative lists along with those of the politicians: Premier Georges Pompidou, former Premier Michel Debre and others.

De Gaulle is not likely to make known his choice until much closer to the end of his term in January, 1965. He has made it clear, however, that his successor must follow the Gaullist line.

Despite the fact that the Count of Paris has carefully abstained from partisan politics, he has supported de Gaulle's policies on major issues. So much so that the small monarchist following in France—mostly on the far right—was outraged when a monthly bulletin issued by the pretender endorsed Algerian independence.

Following the strikes of last winter, the royal newsletter took a position which de Gaulle is known to favor, advocating a "contractual" society in which strikes would be eliminated. The June issue, entitled

Events Feed Rumors

"The Lesson of John XXIII," even compared the late pope's efforts to find Christian unity with de Gaulle's campaign to end political fragmentation in France.

"One cannot imagine John XXIII invisible and remote, in solitude," the bulletin said. "He did not go to the people, but turned toward himself and found them in himself."

This observation must have pleased de Gaulle greatly, because it is exactly the way he thinks of himself.

The Count of Paris, now 55, probably appeals on other grounds as well. De Gaulle, whose own origins are rather vaguely aristocratic, is an ardent admirer of lineage and social position. One of his chief objections to Debre and most other politicians is that he regards their profession as disgustingly low class.

The de Gaulle dream of France, recurring in his books and speeches, is a sort of Athenian republic—governed by an elite with the lower orders in their proper places. He has specifically rejected monarchy in favor of the republic, but a republic in his image.

De Gaulle is not alone in his admiration of the heir to the Bourbons that France sent to the guillotine and then invited twice to return. The Count of Paris is widely respected, as public opinion surveys have repeatedly shown. Henri d'Orleans was not born to carry the monarchist claim. Son of a second son of the Count de Paris who nearly came to the throne when a restoration was contemplated after the fall of the Second Empire, Henri came into line when his uncle died childless in 1926.

In his new status, Henri was forced into exile at 18 under the constitutional requirement that banished the heirs of any family that had reigned over France. From then on, the young prince lived in Morocco (exempt from the ban because it was a French protectorate at the time and not French territory).

After marriage at 22 to his eighth cousin, Isabelle of Orleans-Braganza, he lived in Brazil until the outbreak of the Second World War in 1939. With French officials looking the other way, the pretender enlisted in the Foreign Legion as Henri Orliac, serving in the ranks until France surrendered in 1940.

He returned to Morocco and when French resistance against Vichy mobilized at Algiers in 1943, he seriously considered an offer to head a provisional government. Instead, however, he decided to support Gen. de Gaulle.

The constitutional ban on royal pretenders ended in 1950, and the count and countess, with their 11 children, finally returned to French soil three years later.

Before de Gaulle entered the presidency in 1958, the pretender declared his hope that the perpetual political crises of the Fourth Republic might bring a weary nation to seek him out.

"If at that moment I can be useful to my country, I will be at her disposition without any question of the form of government," the count said.

At the time, he ruled out the largely figurehead post of president, pointing out that the constitution specifically barred him from that office.

De Gaulle's new constitution for the Fifth Republic contains the same prohibition, but has made the president the real chief executive. De Gaulle has already revised the constitution to provide for popular election of his successor and probably could lift the restrictions on eligibility if he wished.

BACKGROUND

U.S. Bases in Spain

Franco's Price High

By PHIL NEWSOM

When the United States and Spain negotiated their 1953 agreement on U.S. naval and air bases in Spain, both sides won important benefits.

The United States won a valuable forward base against Communist aggression and Spain a much-needed economic shot in the arm plus a start toward re-entry into the family of nations.

Now, amid considerable secrecy but with some of the facts known, they are approaching a renegotiation of the agreement which expires in September.

Both sides seek certain gains. A somewhat similar agreement with Portugal on the strategic U.S. base in the Azores already has expired, with negotiations at present reported deadlocked, but by no means abandoned.

Both the Spanish and the Portuguese agreements bear heavily on U.S. strategic planning, especially since President de Gaulle's snub of the Atlantic alliance, the gain in Communist voting strength in Italy and U.S. hopes for a mixed-nation naval force based on the nuclear-tipped Polaris missile.

All of these conditions would seem to be cards in General Franco's hands.

There are indications the Spanish asking price is not cheap.

The 1953 agreement gave the United States the use of three air bases by the strategic air command, the big naval base at Rota and other installations including naval depots, radar sites and a pipeline system.

There is evidence now that the United States would like to make the Rota base available to NATO submarines carrying nuclear ballistic missiles.

In return, Franco wants either Spanish membership in NATO or, at the least, closer political ties with the United States.

Spanish membership in NATO has in the past been adamantly opposed by the Low Countries, Denmark and Norway and, to a lesser degree, by Britain.

Spain also wants an increase in economic aid which since 1953 has totalled more than a billion dollars, plus modern military equipment including rockets and missiles. On its part, the United States would prefer that the agreement continue much as it is and to wait as long as possible to determine how Europe's strategic and political alignments finally are to work out.

It further has warned Spain that, because of the unfavorable outflow of U.S. gold, free military aid to Spain will have to stop. That, instead, she will expect Spain to spend some $250,000,000 of her own money on new equipment.

The deadlock in the negotiations with Portugal is on an issue less complex but equally difficult.

The 20-year-old agreement with Portugal expired last Dec. 31 but use of the base, which is a strategic link with Europe and Africa, has continued.

Boiled down to simplicities, President Salazar of Portugal insists that the United States abandon its support in the United Nations of the African nations demanding independence for Angola and Mozambique, Portugal's two big territories in Africa.

Both the Portuguese and the Spanish negotiations go far beyond the mere question of bases.

U.S. Blamed for Munich

By DON SHANNON

PARIS—A former French foreign minister has charged the United States rather than France and Britain was responsible for the betrayal of Czechoslovakia to Hitler at Munich.

Georges Bonnet, 74-year-old member of the National Assembly who served as foreign minister in the cabinet of Premier Edouard Daladier on the eve of the Second World War, made the statement in the evening newspaper Paris-Press.

Fall 'Policy' Talks

Ottawa Cautious On Road Parley

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government is treading the fragile eggshell of relations with the provinces much more cautiously on highways policy after the furore over municipal loans and contributory pensions.

Works Minister Deschatelets gave an indication of this in the Commons Wednesday when he expressed hope that he can get together with the provincial highways ministers this fall on highways policy.

He stressed that the federal government's intention is that the conference should "give consideration to a relationship between the federal and provincial governments in the highway field."

NO INDICATION

Informants said Mr. Deschatelets carefully phrased his statement to avoid giving any indication whether the federal government has any feelings about extending the scope of its assistance on highway building.

Current federal aid is limited to paying up to 90 per cent of the cost of completing the Trans-Canada Highway. This is done through individual agreements with the provinces which expire Dec. 31.

Mr. Deschatelets told the Commons that preliminary talks now are under way with provincial highways department officials to gather information on current and projected highway plans and costs.

In Victoria, Highways Minister Gagliardi said he will attend. He said he is not optimistic over the chances of Ottawa entering into another 50-50 cost-sharing formula with the provinces for a second Trans-Canada Highway, "but I'll be in there fighting for whatever we can get."

... urgent

Munich an ugly and abiding fame.

The exchange of insults began last month with a speech by President de Gaulle's minister of information, Alain Peyrefitte, which questioned U.S. commitments to defend Europe in the light of the delayed entry of the U.S. into both world wars.

Bonnet cited President Roosevelt's reply of "not a man, not a cent," to a request by the French ambassador in September, 1938, for a U.S. commitment in the event of war.

"Toward Sept. 20," Bonnet continued, "the American government made known in writing to the French government that, if war broke out, we could not receive the airplanes ordered in the U.S. the previous May, the Neutrality Act prohibiting it."

A week later came Mr. Roosevelt's public appeal to Hitler for a peace conference, which Bonnet credits with persuading the Nazi dictator to convene the Munich meeting.

"The following day," Bonnet said, "the U.S. ambassador in Paris arrived to bring us friendly greetings and the compliments of the United States, which President Roosevelt confirmed personally to our ambassador, while he sent a complimentary telegram to Mussolini."

As the final "evidence" of U.S. culpability, the former foreign minister cited a Washington Post editorial of October, 1938.

"Popular American indignation against France and Britain is both indecent and contrary to good sense," the editorial was quoted as saying.

"In effect, our government had informed Hitler that once he invaded Czechoslovakia, we would make no distinction between the Reich and its victim."

U.S. officials here have carefully avoided entering into the battle of words, but one observed of the latest charge:

"It seems we are convicted in 1939 because we didn't have any treaty obligations, in 1963 because we do."

Norris Debate Pledged

OTTAWA (UPI) — Prime Minister Pearson, pressed by the opposition for quick action on the Norris report on Great Lakes labor violence, said Wednesday the government may permit a Commons debate on the report next week. (See also Page 19).

He rejected New Democrat T. C. Douglas' suggestion that regular business be postponed at the first of next week to permit debate.

But he said the government would consider later calling the Labor Department's estimates to allow members to discuss the recommendations of Mr. Justice T. G. Norris and shipping troubles in general.

No Rehash On Columbia

SEATTLE (CP) — There will be no overall renegotiation of the Columbia River Treaty, Dave Fulton, B.C. Progressive Conservative leader, said Wednesday night.

The United States should control power created in the U.S. and Canada should control power created in Canada, Mr. Fulton said.

He said Canada feels it should sell only surplus power. It does not want to be bound by a firm Treaty, but to have it flexible so that some provisions could be reopened yearly.

Children Saved, Father Drowns

CHAPLEAU, Ont. (CP) — Mrs. Elizabeth Denning of Dayton, Ohio, rescued four children from drowning in Flame Lake near here in a boat capsizing in which their father, James Ferris, 31, also of Dayton, was drowned.

Five Join Canada Council

OTTAWA (CP)—Five persons, including a Victoria newspaper executive and a former Nova Scotia premier, were appointed Wednesday to the Canada Council. They are:

● Stuart Keale, 49, vice-president of Victoria Press Ltd., who replaces Mrs. Margaret (Harvey) Bell.

● Henry Hicks, 48, premier of Nova Scotia from 1954 to 1956.

● Rev. Jean Adrien Arseneault, 38, teacher of French and fine arts at St. Dunstan's University, Charlottetown.

● Dr. Miriam Dorrance, 68, of Vancouver, well known in community affairs.

● Dr. C. J. Mackenzie, 75, of Ottawa, president of the Atomic Energy Control Board from 1948 to 1961.

Negro 'Child-Attacker' Slain

MARION, Ark. (AP)—Nine white persons chased a 12-year-old Negro through a field and fatally shot him Wednesday after a white woman reported he tried to rape her eight-year-old daughter.

Sheriff Cecil Goodwin of Marion said Andrew Lee Anderson died in hospital two hours after the shooting from loss of blood.

The woman, whose name Goodwin would not reveal, was quoted by the sheriff as saying she called her daughter to come to lunch and when the child did not appear, she drove around a corner to get her.

Goodwin quoted the woman as saying the child ran to the car with Anderson in pursuit and told her mother what the Negro was trying to do. Then, the woman was quoted as saying the Negro ran. Goodwin said Anderson did not rape the girl.

Marlon Can't Go To Rally

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UPI)—Marlon Brando, "very sick" with an acute kidney ailment, was in hospital with a high fever, and will not be able to go ahead with his weekend plan to participate in Maryland Negro integration demonstrations.

Brando was taken by ambulance Wednesday from his home to hospital suffering a recurrence of acute pyelonephritis—a kidney ailment.

Although the 38-year-old actor had been treated before for the ailment, his personal physician said the inflammation of the kidney and bladder had never been as acute as this time.

"He will be in hospital at least several days. He's very sick, running a high fever," said Dr. Robert Kostetich.

13,000 Say 'Look, Ma, No Cavities'

More than 13,000 Greater Victoria students were able to run home during the last school year to report "Look, Ma, no cavities."

A report on dental examinations carried out for the Greater Victoria school board shows 22,045 students ranging from pre-school children to high school students were given dental examinations.

Of these, 13,263 were found to be satisfactory but the rest, 8,782, were given cards suggesting they consult family dentists.

The school board's service is an education program, not a treatment program.

Greatest number of pupils checked were in elementary schools—13,338. Of these, 5,171 were given cards and 8,167 were found to be satisfactory.

Walkathon Winner In Training

Colonist walkathon winner Alan Vallant this week started training for an attempt to walk to Nanaimo and back August 1 and 2.

He is combining four steps in his training—each day he soaks his feet in sea water to toughen them, walks for varying distances, does body-building exercises and, starting today, runs up and down two flights of stairs for 45 minutes at a time.

Monday he walked seven miles in 58 minutes 32 seconds; Tuesday he walked nine miles in one hour, 10 minutes; Wednesday he walked 12 miles in one hour, 42 minutes and 28 seconds.

Today he starts walking to work and back again—10 miles each way.

Mrs. Parrott Dies Here

The mother of Vancouver Island Coach Lines manager Conway Parrott, Mrs. Mabel Irene Parrott, died here Wednesday.

She was the widow of William Alfred Parrott, and lived in the Glenislie Hotel, 606 Douglas.

She was born in Toronto and had lived in Victoria since 1920.

Television Star In Gosley Show

Television star Sebastian Cabot will make a personal appearance on the Jerry Gosley Smile Show at the Oak Bay auditorium July 25.

Third Place Mere Dream For Fast-Slipping Nanaimo

IT BEATS ME

By Jim Tang

THE COMING THING: The showing of the home games of the B.C. Lions on a closed television circuit at the Royal Theatre is considerably more than a chance for Vancouver Islanders to watch games denied to them by the lack of a late ferry service. It's an experiment being keenly watched by every professional club in football, and it could just about be the biggest thing that has happened to the game since introduction of the forward pass.

At least three or four general-managers, including Elroy Hirsch of the Los Angeles Rams of the National Football League and Calgary's Jim Finks, are expected here for the first showing — the Aug. 1 exhibition game between the Lions and Ottawa Rough Riders. They will be all hoping that it is as good as reported.

Success of the project means a new and practically limitless source of revenue for all professional clubs, and particularly those in the National and American Football Leagues. They are situated in densely-populated areas and could show their games in hundreds of theatres scattered throughout surrounding urban areas. It is not difficult to envision receipts greater than they now get from the sale of tickets to their stadiums.

Revenue wouldn't be quite so great in less-densely populated Canada but it could be considerable for the East-ern Conference clubs and of an amount not to sneeze at even in the Western Conference. The Lions could show their games in places like Victoria, Nanaimo, Chilliwack, Penticton, Kelowna, Kamloops, Vernon, Nelson and Trail and reasonably expect at least a net revenue of $100,000. Even Saskatchewan Roughriders, also with a whole province to themselves, could expect to have their annual financial problems alleviated through closed-circuit television. It is something which could make football as truly a national game in Canada as hockey and assure its continuance by its financial benefits.

General-manager Herb Capuzzi of the B.C. Lions is absolutely ecstatic about the thing.

"This," he beams, "is a completely new concept of television. The picture is three times clearer than the best home television and the theatre fan is closer to the game than anyone in the stadium except the players."

Capuzzi declares that even the atmosphere is there, that theatre fans will themselves provide the crowd noises by cheering or booing just as lustily as those in Empire Stadium.

"Just wait and see," he says. "You won't worry about not being able to get to Vancouver for the games and you will have fans driving down from other island centres in preference to making the trip to the mainland."

In this, Capuzzi is backed up by what happened when Toronto Maple Leafs showed their home games in nearby theatres last season. Reports state the fans acted just as they do at Maple Leaf Gardens and that reception left little to be desired. It certainly has to be worth a look.

WHO'S SURPRISED? The Inter-City Lacrosse League did just exactly what was expected when they were faced with an obviously legitimate protest made by Victoria Shamrocks after last week's game here against New Westminster. It made a "decision" which was intended to avoid a real decision, something which the ICLL has always shunned.

In a continuation of the weak-kneed approach to things which has always plagued lacrosse in these parts, the ICLL granted by inference that the game should be thrown out by ruling that the protest would be reviewed if the game should have a hearing on the final standings.

Not only did the ICLL pass up a chance to boost interest by having the replay as soon as possible — surely at least as many as the 2,400 fans who saw the game last week would turn out — but it made an unfair ruling, if one can call it a ruling.

Either the protest was legitimate and the game should be replayed or it wasn't legitimate and the game result should stand. There can be no quibbling about having to make a decision on that score as soon as possible after the protest was entered. And if the protest was ruled good, the replay should be as soon as possible.

The ICLL, as always, took the easiest way out it could find. Even if it should turn out that a replay will not be necessary, not having one could decide such an important thing as the individual scoring championship.

New Westminster teammates Jack Bienda and Cliff Sepka are in a tussle with Nanaimo's John Ferguson for the honor and one of them could win or lose it on points derived from a game which should have been tossed out. Bienda got one point, Sepka three points in that game, and who knows what either would do in a replay?

But even that is of comparatively minor consequence when compared to another possibility if events dictate that the game made a difference in the final standings.

It is highly unlikely that it will mean much to the Shamrocks, who almost certainly have to be content with protecting third place. But if Vancouver should finish less than three points behind New Westminster, a replay could decide first place and the playoff bye. A replay at the end of the schedule would then pit a team with everything to gain against a team to which the game means nothing, an unfair situation for Vancouver.

The league schedule ends on Monday, Aug. 12, when New Westminster plays here. A replay would, presumably, be here on the following Wednesday, either delaying the playdowns by two days or, perhaps, giving a club a more rugged playoff schedule than its opponent. There's one thing you can say about the ICLL. It's consistent in procrastination, in its desire to avoid facing reality and its never-ending effort to avoid trouble by pretending it doesn't exist.

QUINTON MAR
... sharp-shooter

Victoria Shamrocks just about settled everything except who will be their semi-final opponents by clobbering Nanaimo, 16-8, last night in an Inter-City Lacrosse League game played before 1,851 Memorial Arena fans.

Result left the Shamrocks with a nine-point lock on third place and Nanaimo in a position where two victories are required in four remaining games against the two mainland clubs even if the up-Islanders should manage to sweep their three remaining games with the Victorians. And Nanaimo has yet to beat the mainland leaders after 12 games.

An obvious animosity towards an old teammate coach Don Ashbee, cost the visitors what chance they had last night.

FOUR PENALTIES

After a promising start in which they scored on both of their first two shots for a 2-0 lead, they drew four successive penalties within about seven minutes. All were taken against Ashbee with Gerry Shires called for a wrap-around, Ted Leibich for slashing, Tom McVie for high-sticking and John Ferguson for holding.

Ron Jay scored two odd-man goals around a scoring shot by Barry Ashbee, made when both clubs were short-handed, and the Shamrocks took a 3-2 lead into the second quarter and never looked back.

Barry Ashbee got a second goal early in the second period on another odd-man play and Bill Bradley made it 5-2 just 20 seconds later.

Nanaimo did get to 5-4 but Tom Coffett and Jay got it to 7-4 by the half and it was 10-4 before the losers were to score again. By that time, midway through the third quarter, it was just a question of playing it out and maintaining order.

Nanaimo did get to 5-4 but Tom Coffett and Jay got it to 7-4 by the half and it was 10-4 before the losers were to score again. By that time, midway through the third quarter, it was just a question of playing it out and maintaining order.

Barry Ashbee got a second goal early in the second period on another odd-man play and Bill Bradley made it 5-2 just 20 seconds later.

Lesson Not Eggsactly True

HAMILTON, Ont. (CP)—Forty children in a nature study class got a valuable lesson Wednesday—in human nature.

The Royal Botanical Gardens, which has conducted children's conservation classes for the last six summers, separated the children into four groups and set off on a two-mile hike into the forest and marsh in suburban Westdale.

The first leader scratched around in the mud beside a stream and, with 10 beaming faces looking on, produced a handful of small, round, white objects.

"These are turtle eggs, and we were very lucky to find them," the leader said. He explained that the female turtle laid her eggs in the mud in May and, if they escaped the notice of forest marauders, they would probably hatch in 90 days or even next spring.

Then the children went on a marsh where adult turtles sunned themselves on partially submerged logs. Each of the other children's groups was also shown the six white eggs.

But three of the more inquisitive children wanted a better look and went back. They dug up the egg cache, and one yelled: "Mine was made in England."

Officials of the Botanical Gardens admitted later that they had searched for two hours Tuesday for turtle eggs and couldn't find any.

They needed the mud with ping pong balls.

"I sandpapered the labels off all the balls but one," said Chief conservationist John Lamoureux. "We're trying to teach them to know nature, and I guess so far we've succeeded."

Silver Sits for Susan

When rider is just four years old, even Shetland pony is hard to mount, especially bareback. Which is why Susan Clark, Departure Bay, Nanaimo, has become perhaps Canada's youngest "horse" trainer, teaching Silver to "sit" so she can climb aboard for ride.—(Flett)

Motorists In U.K. All Right?

LONDON (Reuters)—It is still possible that drivers on British roads may be asked to drive on the right, as in most of the rest of Europe, and in North America, instead of on the left.

Thomas Galbraith, parliamentary secretary to the ministry of transport, told the House of Commons Wednesday: "We are still considering the question of a change."

He said that to keep the cost to a minimum, a change from left to right would require a lengthy preparatory period before it could be brought into operation.

Parking Plea Today

Influential Government Street businessmen fearing loss of trade because of a new parking ban along the west side of Government Street started a petition Wednesday asking city council to delay the move.

The petition will be presented to Mayor R. B. Wilson today, said a spokesman.

No parking signs were placed atop Government Street parking meters from Cormorant to Humboldt, on the west side of the street, this week.

City officials plan to take out the meters to create two lanes of southbound traffic along the congested street.

Thieves stole two purses and a wallet containing a total of some $45 from a car parked near the deer pen in Beacon Hill Park by visitors from Ontario Wednesday.

The purses and wallet, which also contained a bankbook, cheques, credit cards, a driver's licence and other papers, belonged to Mrs. O. J. Linton and Gale Linton of Bancroft, Ont., and Mrs. Ellen Minifie of Cobourg, Ont.

Two youths fled on foot after cracking up an apparently stolen car at Quadra and Courtney Streets Wednesday. They have not been apprehended. The car broke off a parking meter and a telephone pole guy wire when it mounted the curb while turning right onto Courtney after being southbound on Quadra.

Greater Victoria school board workmen are busy sawing strategically-placed slots in the front doors of district schools. Reason for the slots, officials

City Woman, Son Injured

CHILLIWACK (CP)—A Victoria woman and her son were in serious condition Wednesday night after the collision of their car and a school bus.

The nature of injuries to Mrs. Ida R. Sjostrom, 1015 Fashoda, and her son Arthur Russell were not disclosed. A second son, Barry Austin Sjostrom, 18, escaped injury.

Children in the bus were thrown to the floor when the vehicles met at an intersection on the old Trans-Canada Highway 10 miles east of here. Mary Ann Jones, 8, suffered a broken arm but none of the others required hospital treatment.

Motorists drove the 48 youngsters, who had been bound for swimming classes, back to their homes in Agassiz. Supervisor Helen Eddy, 16, said "six or seven had cuts or lost teeth or nosebleeds. They were awfully scared."

Chamber Hopeful

Ferry Run Bugs 'Ironed Out' Soon?

GANGES—New Gulf Island ferry service provided by the government vessel Queen of the Islands may still have "a few bugs," but Salt Spring Island Chamber of Commerce officials are sure they'll soon be ironed out.

"There's been too little time to tell how it will finally work," said chamber president C. R. Horel Wednesday.

"This is a most difficult group of islands for an ideal ferry service. There are five islands, each with its own ideas and its own needs."

"With a small total population, it is hard to justify the sort of service everyone wants."

With instituting of the new B.C. Toll Authority service, Mr. Horel says the islands are now farther ahead than they've ever been.

"We have a new ship, which cost about $2,000,000; we have new wharves; we have a direct connection with Thawassen on the mainland—something we've lacked for a long time.

"Weekends are the big problem," Mr. Horel said, "but then they always have been. I understand cars were left behind at island points last weekend. This has always been the case on sunny or holiday weekends—on Salt Spring as well as the other islands. There have always been overloads."

Another major problem seen by Mr. Horel was providing an interest for ferry passengers—especially those on foot.

"These people are dropped off at Long Harbor for a four-hour visit to our island," said the chamber president. "It's up to us to make those four hours interesting for them."

Car Accident Won't Stall Food Stall

Convener of the surplus food stall for needy families in Greater Victoria, Mrs. E. E. Harper, 5695 Patricia Bay Highway, suffered extensive bruises to her left hand and arm during a traffic accident Tuesday—but the food stall will be open Saturday for its once-a-month food parcel hand-out.

"About 25 volunteers go down there every time. They're very reliable help and they know what to do," said Mrs. Harper, who might not be there on stall day.

Ronald Graham Left $7,000,000 Estate

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lawyers said Wednesday the estate of F. Ronald Graham, who died here April 6, was valued at $7,000,000.

Dan MacLean, manager of National Trust, said some $3, 600,000 of the amount would be absorbed in federal-provincial death taxes.

Mr. Graham, well-known as a financier, sportsman and host, was 78.

Mr. MacLean said in a prepared statement Mr. Graham's estate consists mainly of a personal holding company with assets made up of government, municipal and corporate bonds, and shares in a number of Canadian companies.

The mammoth $500,000 Gra-
University of B.C.

His will provided $125,000 for his wife Helen, with which to purchase another residence if she wished. He left legacies of $20,000 to each of his six sons and seven daughters, and legacies for six employees based on length of service.

Pour In

Entries for competition in the Victoria Highland Games in Macdonald Park, July 27, have passed the 250 mark and still are coming in.

Champion pipers and dancers from all parts of Canada and as far away as San Francisco will compete in 41 highland dancing and piping events.

Bands will include the Canadian Scottish, Seaforth Highlanders and Powell River, Na-mako, Portland and Seattle bands.

225 Miles

Dad Races
To Save Daughter

VANCOUVER (CP) — A father of four raced 225 miles Tuesday to save the life of his nine-year-old daughter, injured in a climbing accident.

Ron Ewson, 41, of Haney, drove behind a relay of police escorts at speeds of up to 85 miles per hour with daughter Joan, from Ashcroft to Vancouver General Hospital.

GOOD CONDITION
The youngster underwent surgery for a fractured skull.
Hospital officials reported her condition as good.

Ewson said his daughter was injured when she fell down a mountainside at a government campsite at Loom
Lake, 40 miles from Ashcroft.
Ewson made the drive to Vancouver in 3½ hours. The trip usually takes more than six hours.

Prairie
Visiting

Two Prairie girls are visiting Victoria in an interprovincial visit connected with the 4-H 50th anniversary.

Betty Ann Barry, 18, of Carrol River, Sask., is staying with Nancy Miller, 1805 Aldous Terrace in Sidney, and Diane Williams, 17, of Minota, Man., is staying with Mary-Jane Williams, 3174 Glen Lake Road.

Bill Thomson, 17, of Alberni, is spending a week visiting the agricultural district of Prince Edward Island.

Local 4-H members have taken the girls on tours of the city and will spend today at Woodwyn Farm in Saanich.

Freighter Towed
To Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two
Vancouver tugs arrived here Wednesday from Kitimat after towing the crippled Northland
Prince 434 miles in two days.

The new, $4,000,000 freighter ran aground Friday, damaging her rudder. She will be repaired here and is expected to be in service again Tuesday.

Woman Testifies

Beer bottles either rolled or were thrown from a car that backed away from 3212 Maple after striking a fence early June 14, a witness testified in Saanich magistrate's court Wednesday.

She was testifying in the preliminary hearing of Larry E. Neil, 242 Glenairle, who has been charged with criminal negligence and failing to remain at the scene of an accident in connection with a traffic death of Neil Kirby, 19, of 110 Medina, at Tolmie and Maple June 14.

'VERY HIGH SPEEDY'
Mrs. Beverley Young told the court she was lying in bed when she heard a car approaching which sounded "very high speedy. By the time I looked out they had hit my fence," she said.

She said she called down to ask if anyone was hurt. She said she was told there was and was asked to call an ambulance.

SAW BOTTLES
She said the car was in her driveway, at an angle with Maple Street. She said that when she got downstairs the car was backing away and continued on Maple Street. It was then she saw the beer bottles appear from the car, she said.

She testified there were three injured boys—two were on the road. One lay near a telephone pole. One of the injured boys was in such a position that the wheels of the car would almost have had to be right on him, she said.

Under cross-examination by defence counsel Foster Isher-wood, Mrs. Young said she was unable to see anything in the car because it backed away so fast.

Ronald Raine, 3145 Jackson, was sentenced to 20 days in jail after entering a plea of guilty to a charge of careless driving. It was his second offence, city magistrate's court

THE ROCKY MOUNTAINS command an entire issue of Holiday Magazine!

The great domain of the Rockies is the astonishment of men the world over. Those who live in the presence of its spectacular beauties say that the Rocky Mountain man, more than any other, somehow stays on top of life.

In a sweeping tribute to Rocky Mountain significance, Holiday Magazine in August explores some of the reasons why. From Pikes Peak to the wild waters of St. Mary Lake in Montana, from Utah's Great Salt Lake to the golden plains of Santa Fe, from Aspen to Boulder, Cheyenne, Laramie, Butte and north through Canada, Holiday's camera climbs to the mountain thrusts, tiptoes in on the wildlife sanctuaries, roams the bronze deserts. A splendor of photography by John Lewis Stage illuminates the Rockies and one of their greatest living secrets: some 10 million years old, they have the effect of making the man who happens upon them feel suddenly young.

Holiday's narration of the history of the Rockies is an exuberant reading experience. A. B. Guthrie, Jr., writes of the Rockies and their big sky. Gene Caesar describes the splendor of Yellowstone Country. Peter Feibleman writes on the ancestral history of the Pueblos to the South, and the green-forested grandeur of the Sangre de Cristos is a fascinating feature by Jack Schaefer. Great articles and great photography make the giant come alive, from the peaks and plains to the 6 million acres of primeval wilderness and the extraordinary geological sculptures—a monumental pause in time—that are the glory of the eight Rocky Mountain states and two Canadian provinces.
August Holiday is big reading. Pick up a copy today!

City Power Talk Doubted by B.C.

B.C. government officials Wednesday were inclined to doubt a Washington, D.C., report that the top-level Columbia power price negotiations with the U.S. would take place in Victoria.

A Washington dispatch Tuesday from The Canadian Press said a U.S. diplomat stationed at Ottawa would probably head the U.S. negotiating team and the talks might take place in Victoria.

An informed source said it was inconceivable the U.S.

team would be headed by an American diplomat from Ottawa.

Meanwhile, the B.C. negotiating team of Premier Bennett, Attorney-General Bonner and Water Resources Minister Williston still expected the talks to take place in the U.S. capital.

MISUNDERSTANDING

The Washington report of Victoria talks probably arose as a result of a misunderstanding, B.C. officials said.

An official of the U.S. embassy at Ottawa is scheduled to visit the west coast next week—but only to attend a University of Washington seminar on general power development at Seattle.

B.C. Likely To Back Legal Help

A plan for subsidizing legal aid in B.C. criminal cases will probably be announced by next fall, according to Attorney-General Bonner.

Discussion of an official legal aid plan for B.C. has been in progress for some time with the provincial law society, he said.

The plan would probably take the form of a fee subsidy for lawyers defending individuals who cannot afford to hire counsel. It does not include an officially-appointed public defender.

Mr. Bonner was critical of a suggestion by the Civil Liberties Association that only the wealthy can afford to hire top lawyers, adding: "High-priced lawyers are not always the best."

Million Accident-Free Hours

Illuminated scroll marking 1,000,000 man-hours of accident-free work by employees of B.C. Telephone Co. Island division has been presented to G. C. McDonald, right, Island manager, by J. C. Steward, left, president of B.C. Safety Council. Vice-president of B.C. Telephone Co. operations, C. J. McLean, looked on.

Waterfront Cleanup Government Target

OTTAWA (CP)—A high-powered team of government officials meets today to map out plans for possible government action to clean up the Great Lakes waterfront and curb harassment of Canadian shipping.

The deputy ministers and other experts from four federal departments—labor, transport, justice and external affairs—have been summoned to the special meeting.

The order for the priority meeting came directly from Prime Minister Pearson after public disclosure of lawlessness in the marine industry.

SPECIAL URGENCY

It was cast with special urgency in the wake of threats by lake seamen to take drastic retaliatory action if the government does not act quickly against the Seafarers' International Union of Canada.

The SIU and its controversial American-born boss, 54-year-old Hal C. Banks, was condemned Monday by Mr. Justice T. G. Norris in torrid terms.

The 60-year-old Vancouver judge, reporting his findings after a year's investigation portrayed Mr. Banks as a lawless power-hungry tyrant who dominated both shipowners and sailors with terror, intimidation and violence.

To cure this and to combat disruptions to shipping, the judge proposed a series of sweeping measures aimed at reforming the waterfront—in-

No Trouble On Seaway

OTTAWA (CP)—W. J. Smith, union leader of St. Lawrence Seaway workers, Wednesday denied reports that his Transport Workers' Brotherhood plans to tie up the seaway to force government action against the Seafarers' International Union.

Mammoth Tooth Found In Cordova Bay Area

The provincial museum has which existed in B.C. more than 10,000 years ago.

"The mammoth probably never existed on the island," he said, "but was probably deposited here during the ice age."

"This is not the first one to be found on the island as we have had three or four prior to this one and all have been found in gravel pits."

'Paleface Laws' Still Awful

MONTREAL (CP)—Charles Canadian, 61, a Mohawk Indian living on the Caughnawaga reserve south of Montreal, said Wednesday he is as disgusted with "paleface laws" as his ancestors were in colonial days.

His souvenir-grocery store in the reserve was broken into last weekend for the fourth time in four years and the police—RCMP and provincial—have been unable to find the thieves.

In the latest break-in, Mr. Canadian said not only was the shop looted but was set on fire, leaving him a ruined man.

He said that, when he complained to the RCMP detachment in Caughnawaga, he was told the federal police could not act unless the case involved smuggling or other criminal acts coming under RCMP jurisdiction in Quebec.

Next, he notified the Quebec Provincial Police whose investigation concluded only the break-in was committed by "one or more outsiders" of the reservation.

"Because of the lack of police protection," he said, "fire and theft insurance rates are so high that I was unable to insure my property."

"As a result, I cannot replace the damage done and I'm now in an advanced age and penniless."

He feels a regularly employed policeman on the reserve could put an end to such robberies.

DOUBLED CATCH

The cod catch accredited to Canada more than doubled when Newfoundland joined the Dominion in 1919 and now is about 800,000,000 pounds a year.

Arson Probed

CHICAGO (AP)—Two hundred people fled to safety as fires broke out almost simultaneously in two north-side hotels. Arson investigations were ordered by fire commissioner Robert Quinn.

About 200 guests fled the Knickerbocker and Drake hotels. Damage totalled $35,000.

Don't Look at Sun

Watch It on TV

Vancouver Island residents expecting Saturday's eclipse of the sun to turn day into night, put chickens to sleep and start crickets chirping are due for a disappointment.

What will actually happen so far as this area is concerned is less impressive — only 57 per cent of the sun's surface will be obscured by the moon and the drop in light will be so slight that it will hardly be noticeable.

But there seems a fair chance that Greater Victoria residents won't see even that much — the weather forecast is possible rain tonight and Friday morning and clouds might obscure the sky at the crucial times Saturday.

In case the sky is clear Saturday, Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, senior medical health officer of the Metropolitan Board of Health has issued a flat warning — There is no safe way to look directly at an eclipse of the sun!

He specifically warned against using smoked glasses, sun glasses, welder's goggles, exposed photographic film or pin holes in cardboard.

"Even though the dazzling rays of the sun are blocked during an eclipse, dangerous infrared rays are emitted and they can cause harmful burns inside the eye," he said.

"These infrared rays act in much the same way as a magnifying glass which can burn paper by focusing the sun's rays. Because the retina of the eye is insensitive to pain the victim never realizes he has been harmed until too late."

The television screen is a very safe and convenient way to watch as the event will be given nation-wide coverage."

Precise details of the partial eclipse as viewed from Victoria were calculated recently by the Astronomy 120 class at Victoria University and lecturer Jean K. Petrie, wife of Dr. R. M. Petrie, director of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory on Little Sasine Mountain.

The class calculated the eclipse will begin in Victoria at 12:16 p.m. Saturday, increasing until 1:38 p.m. when 57 per cent of the sun's surface will be covered.

From 1:38 p.m. the moon will uncover more and more of the sun's surface until the eclipse ends at 2:50 p.m.

From a scientific point of view, the partial eclipse is of little use, Dr. Petrie said last night. Astronomers stationed at the observatory will watch the eclipse from their homes like everyone else and no recordings will be taken at the observatory.

Dr. Petrie warned that under no circumstances should anyone watch the eclipse through binoculars or a telescope.

Situation was quiet and orderly yesterday as Fresh Fish and Cold Storage workers' men picketed B.C. Packers plant on Ogden Point waterfront. Much of time picketers sat on grassy knoll at side of access road, chatting quietly like J. H. Lewis, 2327 Trent, left, Axel Strom, 2731 Scott, and Glen Rattan, 1425 Fernwood.—(Ted Shackelford)

Seek U.S. Markets

Vancouver Trollers to Join City Boats in Going Fishing

By HARVEY SHEPHERD

Victoria independent troller fishermen have been joined by their fellows in Vancouver in determination to fish in the face of a strike which has tied up the B.C. coast fishing industry.

Richard Williams of Victoria, president of the Pacific Trollers Association, said in a statement last night that a vote by Vancouver trollers has confirmed the decision of trollers along the coast to seek other markets if employers and the striking union cannot agree on some way to let independents sell fish.

Mr. Williams left Victoria Wednesday for Seattle to investigate possibilities of selling on the United States market.

His statement said every day of the strike, fish are moving from troll fishing areas to areas fished by the gillnet fishermen who are on strike.

He said the accompanying revenue loss to troller fishermen threatens the existence of the $7,000,000 trolling industry.

Fish Plant Picketed

Meanwhile, pickets appeared at the Victoria B.C. Packers plant at Ogden Point Wednesday when shore workers brought about the final phase of the tieup of the $70,000,000-a-year coast fishing industry.

Union members said the other three main Victoria fish processing firms — C. A. Torville's, Oakland Industries and Dennis Shellfish Company — all not unionized, also will not handle fish declared "hot" by the union.

And officials of the striking United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union denounced a "final" management offer in the strike as an ultimatum with pre-conditions amounting to insults.

Homer Stevens, general secretary of the union, in a scathing letter to Kenneth Campbell, secretary-manager of the Fisheries Association of B.C. said:

"You still seem to believe your past policy of arbitrary final offers will solve all problems."

'Final Offer' Mailed

The association last night made public what it termed its "final offer" in a statement mailed to all industry employees and fishermen.

The offer was for 10 cents a pound for pink salmon, down 1½ cents from last year, and increases in price for other species of salmon. Plant workers and packer boat crews were offered a four-per-cent wage increase.

"The decision as to whether union members will be allowed to vote on this final offer rests with the union," the association said in a statement.

The union's letter said the union's strike and policy committee has already rejected the management move, confident their action will be supported by the membership.

Boards Asking Supplementals

Two southern Vancouver Island school boards have endorsed efforts to have supplemental examinations for Grade 12 students reinstated.

Both Greater Victoria school board and the Gulf Islands school board have endorsed a resolution seeking reinstatement of the supplemental examinations. The resolution will be put before the annual meeting of the B.C. School Trustees' Association.

First Victoria Vacation

Theft of Swimsuits Spoils Holiday Fun

Theft of four swimsuits from a campsite at Colwood this week has cast a gloom over a Vancouver Island vacation which had been planned for 10 years by a family from Edmonton.

Frank Weber, 40, his wife, Betty, and their four children, Gillian, 12; Jane, 8; Richard, 7, and Elaine, 1, expected to do a lot of swimming during their trip ever made to Victoria.

They went swimming twice in the salt water at Qualicum and their suits, still wet upon arrival of the family and their holiday trailer at Colwood, were hung on a fence to dry.

Somebody took the swimsuits belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Weber and their two oldest daughters, leaving only a pair of trunks owned by seven-year-old Richard Weber.

"I would like the despicable person who took the swimming suits to know that he spoiled the first seaside holiday that four children have ever had," said Mrs. Weber.

"I was so angry I wanted to pack up and go back to Banff," she said. But the family decided to stay here another week, despite being left high and dry.

Mr. Weber, a 40-year-old federal income tax assessor, said he has always wanted to visit Victoria. But when he got out of the air force in 1946, he bought an acre of land in Edmonton under the veterans' small holdings arrangement.

"We've been working the land until we got what we thought was a nicely landscaped garden, but it is nothing in comparison to what we have seen in Victoria," he said.

"We didn't have a holiday until eight years ago, when we started visiting the national parks. We've been wanting to make this trip for 10 years but didn't have enough travelling time."

Plans for the Vancouver Island trip finally shaped up last year, when Mr. Weber took only two of his authorized three weeks' vacation—giving him a whole month's vacation this year.

Mrs. Weber said it would cost "about $25" to replace the stolen swimsuits, and "in the middle of a vacation you don't go buying swimsuits."

Apart from the fact that the family can't go swimming, they said they are having a wonderful time here and they think "this is a perfect place to spend a vacation."

Wage Increases Won By Empress Employees

Across-the-board wage increases totalling seven cents an hour are included in a binding arbitrator's report ending the 1½-year labor dispute at the Empress Hotel.

By agreement between the CPR hotel and Local 276, the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers, reached last May after personal intervention by B.C. Labor Minister Leslie Peterson, the award by University of B.C. law school dean George Curtis is binding on both sides.

Union officials were understood to be happy with the award. Management had no comment.

The award is retroactive to March, 1962, when the previous contract expired, and provides for a three-year contract with annual wage increases of three cents, two cents and two cents.

Other features of Dean Curtis's award include substantial wage adjustments for engineers and certain other categories and no difference in treatment between employees who receive tips and those who do not.

NORMAL STAGES

Contract negotiations began in January, 1962, and went through all the normal stages including conciliation and a strike vote, as well as extraordinary last-minute talks with Victoria conciliation officer W. T. McLaughlin.

During the last-minute talks, the union said it was willing to accept as a basis for negotiation Mr. McLaughlin's suggestion of a three-year contract, dating from date of signing, with wage increases totalling seven cents and a $50 lump sum payment instead of retroactive pay.

Management rejected the suggestion.

Agreement to accept binding arbitration came hours before a threatened strike at the hotel was scheduled to begin.

Dean Curtis held hearings on June 17.

Clinic Goal 500 Pints

Victoria Red Cross officials are hoping for at least 500 pints of blood to be donated during the two-day drive which starts today.

The Red Cross is faced with the usual heavy summer demand for blood and in Red Cross House, 1846 Fort, today and in the nurses home annex at Jubilee Hospital tomorrow.

Lecture Friday

A lecture on programmed learning, open to the public at no cost, will be given in the Lansdowne auditorium of Victoria University at 12:30 p.m. Friday.

The lecture will be given by K. Auswick, director of the research unit at Sheffield University, England.

Ferries Back By Weekend

B.C. Government ferry service between Swartz Bay and Tsawwassen will resume hourly sailings from each terminal at 7 a.m. Saturday.

The summer schedule was interrupted because of engine trouble aboard some of the ferries.

East-West Route Begun by Saanich

By JACK FRY

Saanich public works crews are hammering out a road which one day will be a major east-west route between the University of Victoria's Gordon Head campus and the Trans-Canada Highway.

For the present, the linkup of previously broken Tattersall Drive behind the Town and Country shopping centre will create an access for hundreds of potential customers through Quadra and as far east as the Maplewood area.

LONG-RANGE PLAN

Up to $125,000 will be spent in the long-range plan for extension of Tattersall as a university access route, and about $65,000 was included in the 1963 budget for the present linkup between Savannah and Calumet.

Negotiations for the linkup of the near Calumet started three years ago. Two houses were moved out of the way, tons of fill was brought in and ditches were diverted.

Grading of the road started a couple of months ago and is nearly completed. The surface will be oiled and given a prime coat of asphalt before it is opened to the public, said municipal engineer Neville Life.

NEEDING LAND

Municipal officials are negotiating for the purchase of land in the Richmond-Cedar Hill Cross Road area and on Doncaster Drive for the next phase of the Tattersall Drive extension program.

When the overall plan for this program is completed, persons will be able to drive from the Gordon Head campus through the Cedar Hill Cross Road-Richmond intersection to the corner of Pear and Shelbourne, along Pear to a Tattersall Drive right-of-way through Cedar Hill Golf Course and westward to Calumet, Saanich Road and Douglas Street leading to the Trans-Canada Highway and the Patricia Bay Highway.

Salmon or Octopus

Voracious Cod Not Particular

Two Victoria men yesterday learned what a voracious appetite the ling cod has.

Fishing off Albert Head yesterday morning, Henry Harris, 285 Walter, caught a six pound coho.

Just as he got it to the boat, his brother Clifford, 2930 Milgrove, went to net it and saw a 12-pound ling cod about to grab the coho.

Clifford first netted the ling cod and then the coho.

Later when they cleaned the cod they found it had already eaten an octopus of which one tentacle measured three feet in length.

Brigadier Visits Camp

Brig. E. D. Darby, B.C. area commander, Vancouver, will visit the Young Soldiers' Training Plan militia summer camp at Albert Head this morning.

Basil FitzGibbon that Man in the Kitchen

In judging the skill of cookery, it is the ability to season well that separates the gourmet cook from the novice. Regarding how fresh the meat, how succulent the vegetable, it is the cook's ability to flavor well that produces a dish of true excellence.

Good cooks are made and not born. It takes some practice and some thought to determine if a dish is flavored to perfection.

Bride Wears Family Ring

Rema Mary Stofer recently exchanged vows with Mr. Ronald Murray Dunnett in Victoria's Truth Centre. Rev. Emma W. Smiley officiated for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald P. Stofer and the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Dunnett, Kisher Avenue. Mrs. S. Chiverrall accompanied the father of the bride as he sang At Dawning.

The bride chose a ballerina-length gown of white nylon chiffon over tulle. Her shoulder-length veil was held by a lily-of-the-valley headpiece and she carried red and white carnations. For something old she wore her grandmother's brooch and her ring belonged to the groom's grandmother.

Mrs. N. Henson, matron of honor, was in a ballerina-length gown of blue sparkle organza over tulle. Her shoulder-length veil was held by a lily-of-the-valley headpiece and she carried red and white carnations. For something old she wore her grandmother's brooch and her ring belonged to the groom's grandmother.

Mr. and Mrs. Henson were ushers. A small reception was held at the home of the bride's parents where a three-tiered cake baked and decorated by Mrs. Stofer, was cut by the newlyweds. Mr. Ken H. Stofer proposed the toast to his niece.

Leaving on a honeymoon to the United States, the bride chanced to a beige double knit suit with brown accessories. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Dunnett will make their home at 727 Esquimalt Road, Victoria.

Visiting Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Horel, Cushman Lake, for a week are Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Ashurst, Edmonton, with Susan, Derek and Brian, and Judy Becker of Miss Evelyn Tilton, Victoria.

Visiting Mr. and Mrs. Walter Plewin, Vesuvius Bay, for two weeks are Mrs. Flewin's mother and sister, Mrs. A. J. Doull and Miss Alix Doull, Victoria.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. M. Lamb, Mary Lake, have had visiting them for a week Mrs. Lamb's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. T. V. O'Gorman, Calgary.

Mrs. Cecil Springfield has returned to her St. Mary Lake home following a four-month trip around the world, several weeks of which were spent visiting relatives in England. She was accompanied by Miss V. Peel, Cowichan Bay.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I have been happily married for 20 years. My problem is an unusual one. My husband seldom laughs.

He sits there with a half-smile while others are in near hysterics over something they find hilarious. Naturally everyone wonders if HE is crazy—or if THEY are. This behavior has baffled me for years. Lately it has become downright maddening.

I've considered all the possibilities and have eliminated them one by one. His teeth are nice-looking and in excellent condition. His hearing is perfect. He is very quick to grasp an idea. Nothing escapes him.

He claims he does not have a superior attitude and moreover he can't understand why his placidity bothers me. Can you give me some insight? WIFE OF STONE FACE.

Dear Wife: Reactions to pain, embarrassment, sorrow and humor vary—depending on early training and conditioning. I see no reason for you to be unhappy with your husband because his reactions are of a lower voltage than yours or your friends.

This is what Lord Chesterfield said about laughter in "Letter to His Son": "Loud laughter is the mirth of the mob, who are only pleased with silly things; for true wit or good sense never excited a laugh since the creation of the world. A man of parts and fashion is therefore only seen to smile, but never heard to laugh."

Dear Ann Landers: I am a store manager with a sticky problem. A man who has been employed by this firm for almost 18 years is a notorious Romeo. He is competent in his work and has seniority, which complicates matters. I've had to fire three young women in the past 22 months because they became involved with him.

Currently he is hot on the trail of a middle-aged employee. He leaves together for coffee breaks twice a day and everyone knows they are dating outside the store. The man's intentions are NOT honorable and I hate to see him make a fool of this nice woman.

She needs the job and I won't fire her. I can't fire him. Yet as store manager I feel I should not allow this affair to flourish right under my nose. What are my responsibilities?—TORN.

Dear Torn: Your responsibilities are to continue to manage the store and let the employees manage their own lives—even though they are doing a poor job of it. Firing the woman would not put an end to this affair. It

Attendants Give Shower

A surprise bridal shower was given for Miss Yvonne Clearie by her bridal attendants the Misses Maureen Gee, Esther Shelley and Cathy Hatch at Miss Hatch's home.

The gifts were presented in a little red schoolhouse. Miss Clearie has just completed three years of teacher training at Victoria University.

A vase of roses and "bachelor's buttons" was given to the bride-elect while bud vases containing rosebuds were given to the bride-elect's mother, Mrs. John Clearie, and the groom's "mother-by-proxy," Mrs. C. J. Pye.

Other guests were Mrs. Jack Shelley, Mrs. W. Stuart, Misses Mary Lou Kernode, Jean Calverlie, Linda Thero, Bonnie Rogers, April Hall, Heather Eckford, Lucille Benton, Carolyn Wild, Jill Caldwell, Pat Lovelless, Susan Ross, Liz McLennan, Julie McDiarmid, Pat Thompson, Jan White, Flo Hall.

Miss Clearie's marriage to Mr. Edward William (Jim) Moxley will take place at 7:30 in Christ Church Cathedral.

Canadian Wins $2,500 Award

TORONTO (CP)—Donna Marie Carr, 23, of Calgary, has been awarded a $2,500 Amelia Earhart scholarship for advanced study in aeronautic sciences.

The award, given by the Zonta International—a women's service organization—was announced by the Toronto Zonta Club.

Miss Carr, an aeronautical engineering graduate from McMaster University, Hamilton, is the first Canadian to receive one of the four scholarships given annually. She will work for her MA degree at the Institute of Aeronautics, University of Toronto.

After the long receiving line had been greeted, His Honor and Mrs. Pearkes came down onto the grounds to mix and talk with the guests. Here, Mrs.

Cmdr. J. G. Mills, RCN, in summer whites, and Mrs. Mills pictured as they wait in line patiently with hundreds of others. Edging their way along the tree shaded drive it took nearly an hour to reach the focal point where His Honor and Mrs. Pearkes stood to receive them.

Chatting on the pathway that leads between glorious beds of begonias were sisters, Mrs. G. F. Kenny, left, Mrs. C. L. Tolson and Lt.-Cmdr. and Mrs. H. J. Andrews who, like many other guests, enjoyed a stroll among the gardens.

Mrs. V. C. Southcott, left, held her purple parasol high to shade the bright sun and when she had her picture taken wished that she had brought one of her prettier ones. Others in the picture are Mrs. J. H. Hunter, Mrs. M. Kranz and Mrs. G. McLaren.

Sun Shines for Government House Party

By DOROTHY WROTNOWSKI AND JULIE CLARK

The weather, so uncertain this summer, turned a smiling face on the Government House garden party yesterday afternoon. Clear, sunny skies, a gentle breeze, sweeping emerald green lawns and masses of colorful flowers were a perfect setting for the annual affair.

Bright flowery prints vied with plain silks in attire worn by feminine guests. Hats were of every hue and in style varied from the tiny pillbox, popular floral to wide cartwheels.

Summer whites worn by navy personnel for the first time in years gave a sharp lift to male dress.

The Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Pearkes stood in the garden facing the main entrance of Government House and received more than 3,000 guests.

Mrs. Pearkes was wearing a shaded green nylon floral print and brimmed hat of beige straw, banded in the same shade of tulle and a large beige silk rose at the side. Her accessories were in white.

The Hon. Clarence Wallace, a former Lieutenant-Governor, and Mrs. Wallace came from Vancouver for the party. Mrs. Wallace chose a beige lace suit and bright green silk net whimsy hat.

Guests strolled around the lawns, up by the lily pools and around the garden paths. Most oft repeated remarks overheard were "Aren't the begonias gorgeous?" "Where is the lemonade?" and as the afternoon wore on "Oh, my feet!" from the feminine members shod in pointed toed, tiny heeled pumps.

BRING MORE CHAIRS

Speaking of overheating remarks, before the party officially opened a truck drove along the road bordering the tents where tea was to be served. Several men were there to unload large tanks of hot water.

Suddenly, a woman dressed in a pink and blue print with a frothy pink hat, stepped up to the truck and said, "Are you men from Government House?" They assured her they were. Then she said "Well, I phoned Government House this morning and asked what would happen if there weren't enough chairs set out and they told me that more chairs would be set out. So, you had better get more chairs out right now."

And that was before the party had started. Really.

Themes from Broadway musicals filled the air as the HMCS Naden Band and The Royal Canadian Engineers played from different positions in the gardens. Guests were greeted with songs from South Pacific and West Side Story among others.

Ringed the velvety lawns were beds banked with clumps of daisies, gorgeous phlox and

Maj. W. S. Wilson, QOR, and Mrs. Wilson, who recently arrived from Ghana, were there with Mrs. Wilson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Sinnott.

Smart in black were Mrs. Massey Gooden and Mrs. Maurice Wood. Mrs. Gooden's dress of black peau de soie was complemented with a rose whimsy hat. Mrs. Wood's suit was of black silk brocade and her hat of black petals was touched with lime green at the top.

Mrs. Eric Charman chose a summery blue and white print, white topcoat and small flower whimsy hat. Mrs. W. B. Holmes also wore a white sculptured cotton coat and brimmed white garden party hat.

Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett chose a beige ensemble and white petal hat and Mrs. J. N. Edgar was in soft grey silk with red roses on her matching hat. Mrs. Cyril Wightman wore a pale blue sheath and rose-trimmed pink picture hat.

One of the most attractive and smartly dressed women at the party was Mrs. T. Juelsberg in a printed silk dress in tones of rich green, styled with wrap-around skirt. She chose a white broad-brimmed straw hat.

Seen standing in the long line to meet His Honor and Mrs. Pearkes were Mr. and Mrs. John Wade with Mr. Simon Wade. Mrs. Wade was in a white two-piece lace suit with dainty pink hat.

Also in the line were Capt. and Mrs. Walter Brown. Mrs. Brown chose a smart navy linen suit with small white hat.

An attractive muted green on white silk print was chosen by Mrs. M. E. Reid for her two-piece ensemble. A white hat completed the outfit.

Mr. Jim Rose and Miss Susan Lewis were a young couple seen at the party. Miss Lewis chose a sheath dress in a bold black and white print, topped with a black straw hat.

Strolling on the lawns and chatting to friends were Mayor and Mrs. B. B. Wilson. Mrs. Wilson's soft beige and white silk print costume was two-piece with a loose-fitting over blouse caught with a sash. Her hat was of fine beige straw styled with wide turned-up brim.

Mrs. J. D. Prentice, in a lovely two-piece, honey-toned brocade suit was seen with her daughter, Mrs. Millard, who chose a red linen dress with black accessories.

One of the outstanding hats was that of Mrs. Norman Featherstone. Her high-crowned chapeau of pale pink ostrich feathers was a striking complement to her deep green linen suit.

With her husband was Mrs. J. B. M. Barnum, in a red and white silk costume with white flowered hat. Smart in black and white was Mrs. John Stark as she mixed with friends under the huge, shading oak trees. Her white linen dress was accented with a black sombrero hat and Mexican earrings.

Just returned from a year at school in Europe, Miss Ann MacDougall was with her parents, Major and Mrs. Keith MacDougall. Black, red and white were the colors of Miss MacDougall's very smart silk dress. With it she wore a small, black straw hat.

Mrs. J. W. McDowall was gay in a silk print, V-necked dress of brilliant turquoise and deep blue leaf pattern. With it she wore a frothy-petalled hat.

A soft mushroom pink linen suit was chosen by Mrs. John Gault, who attended the garden party with her husband. Her hat was white with pink flowers.

Prof. G. A. Brand looked reassured when his wife was complimented on her hat. Brilliant red poppies covered the crown and black velvet-trimmed brim of her smart hat. Her suit was of pale gold silk. Mrs. J. Nardal chose brown chiffon for her dress and her flame-colored straw hat had flame and pale yellow roses.

Mr. and Mrs. James Badni, who only had to walk across Rockland Avenue from their home, were among the early arrivals. Mrs. Badni was in a many-toned print chiffon with conical black straw hat.

Sipping tea near the striped marquees on the lower lawn was Mrs. F. N. Cabellu, who wore a striking brown and flame silk dress in poppy print with pink stole and flame straw hat.

Admiring the lilies in the ponds were Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Macdonnell. Silver fox trimmed the collar of Mrs. Macdonnell's pink and white nylon duster which she wore with a matching dress and pink hat touched with sprigs of heather.

Miss Mary Campbell chose a stunning ensemble of turquoise Chinese silk brocade. Tiny Oriental fans were on her matching hat.

Lynn Seymour Weds C. Jones

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lynn Seymour played life's biggest game de deux Tuesday night, marrying Colin Jones, a London press photographer.

The ceremony at the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club was a simple family affair. Misses were the crowds that pushed the Vancouver girl to the stately heights of international ballet.

Miss Seymour, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. E. V. Springbett, was married by Rev. Peter Connell, assistant pastor of Kildonan United Church.

Her wedding dress, a white silk, was designed and tailored in London. The ribbed, heavy French cotton import was styled with an A-line skirt and low-collared jacket. Her headpiece was all-white flowered pill box. Attending the groom as best man was the bride's brother, Dr. Bruce Springbett of California.

A reception at the club followed with Dr. Clark Osborne master of ceremonies.

Here for the wedding were the bride's aunts and uncles, Mr. and Mrs. Jack McCaughan of Edmonton, Mrs. Norman Griffith and Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Springbett of Calgary. Also present was Mr. Desmond Doyle of the Royal Ballet Company, London, and Miss Wynne Shaw, well known dance teacher who flew from Banff.

The couple planned a honeymoon in the interior and will leave early in August for their home in London.

Miss Seymour-Seymour is a stage name—and Mr. Jones met when both were on a tour with the Royal Ballet in Athens.

Always more interested in photography than ballet, Mr. Jones now works professionally with the London Observer and Queen Magazine.

He is 25, his wife 24.

Coffee Party for Bride-Elect

Mrs. Wilson Loudoun entertained recently at her Casey Drive home in honor of Mrs. Yvonne Savannah, whose marriage to Dr. E. Harvey Richardson takes place July 20. Gifts were concealed in a miniature replica of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory where Dr. Richardson is employed. Assisting the hostess at the coffee party were Mrs. M. O. Speller and Miss Gwyneth Loudoun. Guests were Mrs. S. Richardson, Mrs. F. Willis, Mrs. M. O. Speller, Mrs. D. Duncan, Mrs. F. C. Hamilton, Mrs. T. Hempton, of El Salvador and the Misses Ann and Jane Savannah.

A garden party will be held Saturday, July 20, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Reynolds, 3880 Cadboro Bay Road, by members of the Oak Bay Social Credit Club. Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett will open the affair at 2:30 p.m. There will be home cooking and a novelty stall. Pictured making final arrangements are Mrs. Reynolds, Mrs. Bennett and Mrs. Agnes Bury. —(Ryan Bros.)

Carolyn Maysmith Honored at Parties

Miss Carolyn Joan Maysmith, whose marriage to Mr. Edward Paul Kowalyk takes place July 20, has been honored recently at a number of bridal showers.

The home of Mrs. A. Kowalyk was the scene of a gathering to honor Miss Maysmith. Co-hostesses were Mrs. N. Kowalyk, Mrs. T. Leschuk, Mrs. M. Honcharuk, Mrs. W. Rutich, Mrs. P. Yakimovich, Mrs. D. Kemarichuk and Mrs. O. Chubayrich. The bride-elect received a corsage of red roses, while her mother, Mrs. R. Maysmith, Mrs. A. Kowalyk, her grandmothers, Mrs. E. Chalk and Mrs. E. Maysmith received Esther Reid daisies and roses on corsage. There were about 45 guests present.

Mrs. N. Kowalyk entertained recently at her home. Among guests were wives of members of the Victoria Shamrocks Lacrosse team, at which Mr. Kowalyk is captain. Miss Maysmith, Mrs. R. Maysmith and Mrs. A. Kowalyk each received a corsage. After the gifts were opened, games were enjoyed. Refreshments were served from a lace-covered table centred with a novel bride doll surrounded by pink roses. Other guests were Mrs. R. Marshall, Mrs. F. Wooster, Mrs. F. Severn, Mrs. G. Johnson, Mrs. J. McNeil, Mrs. K. Lawrence, Mrs. E. Ashbee, Mrs. R. Lott, Mrs. L. Konec, Mrs. J. Wornald, Mrs. J. Comb, Mrs. H. Jordan, Mrs. R. Jay, Mrs. B. Bartola, and Miss Della Irwin.

Former school friends of Miss Maysmith gathered recently at the home of Miss Suzanne Calladine, where she and Mrs. Donna Lawton were co-hostesses at a miscellaneous shower.

Refreshments were served from a table centred by a beautiful "shower" cake. Guests were Mrs. R. Maysmith and the Misses Barbara Maysmith, Margaret Maysmith, Charmaine Armstrong, Pat Loft, Sylvia Mobey, Rosemary Tierney, Judy Smiri, Brenda Noon, Carolyn Logan, Mrs. Val Morry and Mrs. Ellen Siddons.

Mrs. H. G. Ferguson and Mrs. A. J. Ferguson entertained recently in honor of Miss Maysmith, at the home of the former. The bride-elect's young cousins, Miss Leslie and Miss Pamela Ferguson presented Miss Maysmith, her mother and her grandmothers with orchids on corsage.

A large set of Corning Ware skillets and saucepans was presented to the bride-elect by the assembled guests.

Should Women Be Ordained?

MONTREAL (CP) — Swiss theologian Lukas Vischer says the question of ordaining women to the ministry may have a great bearing on the prospects of Christian unity.

He told a press conference there is not much chance of agreement at the World Faith and Order Conference, now in progress here, but the question is on the agenda because the World Council of Churches decided at its 1961 assembly in

SUMMER TEA
Sisters of St. Ann and the Alumnae invite all former students and friends to attend the annual summer tea in St. Ann's Academy July 21 from 2 to 4:30 p.m. Mrs. P. Dixon is general convener. Assisting with arrangements are Mrs. J. Hele, Mrs. B. Caron, Miss E. Archer and Miss M. O'Sullivan.

New Delhi that it should be. Rev. R. P. Lee-Woolf of Birmingham, England, a member of the Congregational Union of England and Wales, said the section must consider whether the reasons for not ordaining women are "good and permanent."

He said the main arguments against ordaining women are that there were none among Christ's apostles and that it is virtually unprecedented in the long history of the Christian churches.

Artists in Victoria Find Going Tough

By JACK FREY

Many artists in Victoria cannot make a full-time living from their talents because the dollar-earning summer tourist season is too short, says a sculptress who works in a city plywood mill.

Rozika Vitarius, 43, a Hungarian-born artist who came here after 14 years in Venezuela, looks forward to the day when she can manage her own little tourist shop, selling Victoria-made works of art to out-of-town visitors.

But she wonders if it will ever come about, because others have tried, and failed at the end of the tourist season when Canadian souvenirs are no longer wanted.

Her Terra Cotta Studio at 1247 Goldstream Avenue is similar to many other curious little businesses dotting the country roads on the outskirts of Greater Victoria.

THIN FLOW

Other craftsmen, like Mrs. Vitarius, a widow, probably find the flow of customers to the roadside studios so thin they have to look elsewhere for a livelihood.

Mrs. Vitarius works at home a week spotting plywood in a forest products plant.

WEEKEND FOR ART

Saturdays and Sundays are devoted to creative work, and it is only then the studio lined with miniature terra cotta works is open to the public.

During her years spent in Venezuela, where her late husband was a pharmacist, Mrs. Vitarius developed an interest in the primitive works of the ancient Incas — an interest which influences her baked-clay creations based on B.C. Indian motifs.

INCA IDEA RETAINED

She has adapted some characteristic B.C. Indian designs into her works, but the Inca tradition of decorating functional objects such as flower vases and lamps with human figures is still there.

Sculptress Rozika Vitarius with Indian face mask.

In 1946 Plane

Gales, Hail, Rain — Pilot Won Cup

A Victoria woman and her husband had to brave gales, hail, rain and heavy cloud recently when they flew in their 1946 Stinson airplane from here to Calgary — but she won a trophy anyway.

Mrs. Betty Wadsworth, 1035 Oliver, piloted the plane which won her the oldest participating airplane trophy donated by the Calgary Flying Club for the Calgary Stampede handi-cap race.

HIT BY WEATHER

From start to finish and back, the couple's trip was marred by adverse weather. They dodged a storm centre out of Penttigon July 5, where they had stayed overnight after their July 4 start.

Time and again, the gales pushed the single-engined Stinson to the south, and near Cranbrook the couple just managed to evade a nasty-looking storm cloud shedding rain.

They cleared the Rockies at 11,500 feet, then approached Calgary airport. But the storm had charged up so much static they couldn't hear the tower's instructions and had to circle for 20 minutes.

Flying back from Calgary, after having attended a fly-in party and a trip to Banff by car, Mr. and Mrs. Wadsworth flew back — into worse weather yet.

Flying time to Calgary was five hours, 10 minutes, and the return trip lasted seven hours, 35 minutes.

'IN WORSE FIXES'

"I've been in worse fixes," said the Victoria housewife who holds a job at the legislative buildings.

Mrs. Wadsworth owns the plane and her husband, Edgar, is a member of the Canadian Owners and Pilots Association. Both hold pilots' licences. She is also a member of the Victoria Flying Club.

FOLLOW HIGHWAYS

She and her husband, who flew part of the way back, had to stick to highways because of low cloud on their return trip.

In addition, she said, "the weather information in the interior of B.C. is poor."

Missile Explodes

CAPE CANAVERAL (AP)—A Minuteman missile exploded five seconds after it blasted out of an underground silo. It sprayed flaming parts harmlessly over a wide area of the cape.

Song Safari Friday For Children

A singing safari into a wooded glen on the south side of Gordon Head campus will take place Friday at 7 p.m.

The safari, which is the personal idea of prominent Victorian Mrs. W. W. McGill, will be led by internationally known baritone Charles King.

CITY-WIDE EVENT

All boys and girls from eight to 13 years of age in the Greater Victoria area are invited to the singing safari.

Meeting place will be Cedar Hill Cross Road and Henderson Road at 7 p.m.

PROGRAM IN GLEN

From there the group will proceed to a glen nearby where there will be a program of stories, games and songs.

Program will finish at 8:30 p.m. when the group will return, singing, to the starting point.

SCHOOL ALTERNATIVE

In case of rain, the children will meet at the south side of Uplands School play area.

For further information, phone Mrs. McGill at EV 4-4803.

Meetings Today

● Dr. R. M. Thompson, retired United Church minister, will speak on Love in Action at a meeting of the Kiwanis Club of Oak Bay in the Oak Bay Beach Hotel at 6:15 p.m.

● Competitor relations and Rotary principles will be discussed by Jack House at a meeting of the Rotary Club of Victoria in the Empress Hotel at 12:10 p.m.

Galls Afflict Roses

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRES

It is rather peculiar the way plant troubles seem to come in cycles. One year, our Public Enemy No. 1 is the cutworm; another year, thrips make it all but impossible to grow decent gladioli or roses. This year, I am being swamped with requests from home gardeners whose rose bushes are afflicted with galls.

These are round, ball-like growths, usually low down on the woody stem, often bigger than a golf ball and covered with prickles, and the growth about the gall is weak and distorted. Almost every batch of mail these days brings at least one package containing one of these thorny balls cut from a rose bush, along with a plaintive letter asking where the thing came from and what to do about it.

A small fly is responsible for these distorted growths. After mating, the female gall fly seeks out a rose bush and lays her eggs in the wood of the stem, at the same time injecting an irritant chemical through her hypodermic ovipositor which causes the stem to swell and the prickly ball to form.

This creates a most comfortable home for the grubs when the eggs hatch out. Safe from all sprays and dusts within the swelling on the stem, they feed upon the pith and fibre and sap of the rose wood until they are mature enough to emerge, pupate, and become adult flies, whereupon the whole cycle is repeated and more rose bushes infested.

Like so many of our other garden problems, rose galls can be prevented but not cured. By the time one of these prickly balls is noticed in a rose stem, the grubs are safely held up where no spray or dust can reach them. The only possible treatment is to cut off the infested rose stem below the gall and burn it in the incinerator along with its unwelcome occupants before the grubs can complete their growth cycle and become egg-laying flies. As the galls are usually low on the stem, cutting them out will usually involve sacrificing a pretty big chunk of a nice rose bush, but there is no alternative—either cut and burn, or turn loose a whole horde of gall flies on your neighbor's roses.

To prevent these galls, it is necessary to nip the gall fly's activities in the bud before she has an opportunity to squirt your rose stems full of eggs. I don't think any insecticide is 100 per cent effective, for even if you booby-trap your rose bushes by keeping them covered with a thin protective coating of rose dust or rose spray, the fly would probably still have time to inject her eggs before passing on to a Better Land as a result of contact with the poison.

Fortunately, though, the rose dust seems to exercise a certain repellent effect, or possibly the strong odor of the malathion in the dust masks the characteristic scent of the rose foliage that attracts the fly in the first place. In any case, if the bushes are dusted or sprayed conscientiously throughout the growing season, starting when they first leaf out, the fly will avoid them, seeking easier pickings elsewhere.

ART BUCHWALD Almost a Goldwater Man

Grass Roots Screened

WASHINGTON—According to Sen. Barry Goldwater there is a grass roots movement towards conservatism that is sweeping the U.S. Since we always like to get on the bandwagon early, we dashed over the other day to attend a convention of arch-conservatives and right wing fellow-travelers.

We went up to the registration desk on the mezzanine floor and told the man, "Sir, I've been swept up by the grass roots movement and I'd like to become a conservative. How do I go about it?"

He pinned a Barry Goldwater for President button on our necktie and replied, "I'll have to ask you some questions first, to see if you're one of us."

"Yes, sir. Ask anything you want."

"Good. How do you feel about the federal income tax?" "Lousy. I think it's a scheme by left wingers in the government to make us pay for socialistic projects such as urban renewal, old age pensions, unemployment insurance, education, and welfare payments for illegitimate children. If I had my way I would take the money I paid in income taxes and invest it in the stockmarket where it belongs."

"Now let me ask you this. Where do you stand on nuclear disarmament?" "I'm against it. I think the U.S. should not only continue testing, but should drop a few bombs on other countries to show the Russians they mean business."

"Very good. What about desegregation?" "I think desegregation is a Communist conspiracy to mongrelize the races, and a violation of the Tenth Amendment of the United States Constitution."

"Would you want your sister to marry a Negro?" "Yes. But that's because she voted for Kennedy, and the whole family is mad at her."

"How do you feel about fluoridation of water?" "Fluoridation is a socialistic scheme to contaminate our drinking water so we'll have less cavities, thus depriving dentists of making money under our free enterprise system."

"What do you think of Bobby Kennedy?" "Boooooooo!"

"How do you feel about the U.S. Supreme Court?" "They should all be impeached," we said. "I say take the prayers out of the churches and put them back in the schools where they belong."

"Where do you stand on the United Nations?" "The United Nations is a Communist organization with the specific purpose of keeping us out of war. I think U Nant should be impeached and the United Nations building should be turned over to Conrad Hilton for a new hotel."

"You seem to be doing very well," the man said. "Yes, sir. I'm not trying to become a conservative for laughs."

"Let me ask this question. What is your personal opinion of Dwight Eisenhower?" "He was a good general, but when he became President he became a Communist and sold us out to the Russians."

"Why do you say he was a good general?" the man said suspiciously. "I must have lost my head," we cried.

But it was too late. The man took back the Barry Goldwater for President button and showed us to the elevator. "For a moment there," he said, "I thought you were one of us. But you gave yourself away."

"Give me another chance," we begged. He shook his head. "We're a grass-roots movement and we can't afford to take chances with Eisenhower-lovers like you."

JOHN CROSBY Chats with Matisse's Son

Too Much Abstraction

SAINT-JEAN, CAP FERRAT, France — "We've had a tough year," said Pierre Matisse, one of New York's most distinguished art dealers and son of the artist Henri Matisse. He smiled at the crash in Wall Street. Then we had the Cuban crisis in October. And in November the newspaper strike.

"The public got very annoyed and made very little effort to find out what was going on in the art galleries."

We were sitting on the little terrace in front of his house jutting right out over the blue Mediterranean. His father had bought it and lived in it the last few years of his life.

The front parlor with its Provencal prints on the chairs and sofa carried on in the window curtains looks so much like a Matisse that I had the impression I was sitting in one of his paintings.

The staircase outside was lit by light falling through a stained-glass window designed by Matisse and on the floor were rugs designed by Miro.

Painters have loved the Riviera as passionately as the millionaires and for almost the same period, which is to say, starting at the end of the First World War.

Matisse lived and painted in and around Nice for 30 years. Picasso still paints at Vallauris, Fernand Léger painted at Biot, where his museum is, Camarone and Van Gogh painted back from the coast a bit at Aix, but under the same soft light.

Sitting there on the terrace, I looked across at the mountains with the ordered masses of roofs in pastel reds and pinks in the soft bluish Provencal light which is both hazy and yet terribly clear. I felt I was sitting not in a Matisse but in a Camarone.

Pierre Matisse spoke of his early days as an art dealer in New York in 1923 when he was trying to sell Matisse, Braque and Picasso to an indifferent public.

Art, it seemed to me, was going through a new period of waking up or anyway change and I asked Pierre Matisse pointed toward a new form of figuration." He admitted that artists were reacting against abstraction, too much abstraction. From a that artistic expression "has period when you could scarcely

Ingrid's Daughter To Follow Mother's Footsteps

By SHEILAN GRAHAM

LONDON (NANA)—Ingrid Bergman's daughter, Pia Lindstrom, has decided to follow in Mama's footsteps as an actress. She has given up her job with UNESCO in Paris and is settling into an apartment in London where she will attend the Central School of Speech and Drama for a year. Pia is also brainy. She has a degree from Stanford University and Mills College. How does Ingrid feel about her daughter wanting to be an actress? She is very pleased.

Albert Finney's personality is so strong that when he tested with young girls—to find a leading lady for his Night Must Fall no one looked at the girl. He was asked not to test with them. And Elisabeth Harnack, now starring on the London stage in Rattle of a Simple Man, was looked at and won the role.

David Merrick slipped out of town after viewing Pickwick, and David O. Selznick slipped in and created a newspaper hallelujah with his crack against a batch of stars—Elizabeth Taylor, "over-weight, over-bosomed, over-paid and under-talented." Plus some side swipes at his old enemy Tony Curtis, and for added measure, Debbie Reynolds, Sandra Dee, Doris Day and Elvis Presley. One sure fire way of letting the people know you have arrived, is to murder celebrities for publication. The blast was to let the British know that Susskind plans to settle in England.

Larry Bushman, head of MGM in Europe, has brought My Land and My People, the life of the Dalai Lama. It is the story of the present lama. "We will make it in India," Larry told me during lunch at Elstree.

Vivian Leigh tried to console Elizabeth Taylor for those unhappy Cleopatra reviews by sending her the reviews she received for Romeo and Juliet with Sir Laurence Olivier. They were ghastly. Elizabeth will hostess The Night of a Hundred Stars on Thursday, but she will not attend the big charity premiere of Cleopatra at the end of the month. And I don't exactly blame her, although I believe the picture will make money in Britain as I am told it is doing in North America.

Leslie Caron's L-Shaped Room, which is such a hit in the U.S., did only so-so business in England, which I don't understand. The conservative failure here and success there could be caused by 22 minutes which were excised before the trip across the Atlantic.

give away a Braque to the enormous prices paid today, the gall was enormous, I said.

He smiled wryly: "In America one attaches so much importance to the price paid for things, where here an artist is what he is regardless of how much money he makes."

Nevertheless, art has got pretty gooey to the point where almost any flimsy piece of seaweed can be sold as art. I asked him if the public wasn't getting too receptive.

"From the point of no acceptance to too much acceptance. The artist has again come full circle. He's on the outside fighting for his life. The pop art, beer cans, cut-up posters, and all that—appeals the action painters—Rothko, De Kooning. They are outraged."

"Their public has not deserted them, but they have been diverted into looking at something that hadn't been considered worthwhile. All this is very healthy. It makes one re-examine one's position. It challenges one's point of view. When there is more aggressiveness, there is more tension between the artist and the public and the critics."

"Once you've seen a beer can for a whole year, it's hard to look at it for another whole year," he remarked dryly. "Still, pop art has had a great success because it's been amusing and exciting and challenging and an upsetting proposition to all the arts."

"The public, I think, is tired of art with a big A and this pop art is amusing and inexpensive and it sells very well."

I have my own theory about all this. The public, I think, has been taught almost too well how to bring its own vision and imagination and value to modern art.

to me, less and less wit, taste, and esthetic imagination have been demanded of the artist and more and more of these qualities have been demanded of the observer to the point where the public doesn't need the artist at all any more.

It can look at a beer can and see all these plastic values in itself. Who needs an artist?

Picket-Plagued Freighter Gets Second New Crew

VANCOUVER (CP) — The picket-plagued freighter Lord Codrington is getting a new crew—and for the second time.

The British vessel has been waiting here since July 2 to take on a load of flour for Colombo, but its Chinese crew members from Hong Kong have gone on strike for better conditions aboard.

Picket lines of one kind or another have been respected, costing the ship owners $1,500 each day the Lord Codrington is idle.

FROM ENGLAND

Now the Chinese crew is being flown back to Hong Kong—and a new crew flows out from England to man the ship.

Lawyer Andrew Joe, representing the seamen, said the Chinese crew was originally flown from Hong Kong to Bremen, Germany, to replace a crew that walked off there.

Sulphur Cargo Cancelled

VANCOUVER (UPI) — A $250,000 sulphur shipment to Japan has been cancelled because of the reluctance of Japanese longshoremen to handle the product.

The shipment was to have been loaded here Tuesday, but because of the Japanese labor problem the ship now is loading grain instead.

Japanese longshoremen refused to handle 6,300 tons of sulphur aboard a Greek freighter which docked in Tokyo last week. They said it was a dangerous cargo.

Deadly Dive

All seven people inside this bus were pulled to safety Wednesday after it tumbled through bridge rail into Seine River in Paris suburb. But three, including conductor, died later in hospital.—(AP Photofax)

Illegal Fruit Trade Brings $100 Fine

PENTICTON (CP) — The manager of a fruit sales company has been found guilty here of attempting to send fruit illegally from British Columbia.

Roland E. Reid, manager of the retail division of Western Farms Limited, was fined $100 in magistrate's court.

He was charged by the B.C. Fruit Board with illegally of fering tree fruit for transportation in inter-provincial trade.

The court was told Reid tried to ship by train a total of 64 cases of apples to four separate people in Alberta.

Under the Natural Products Marketing Act, one person is allowed to ship a maximum of 20 cases of apples a year from B.C.

Reid argued that the four Alberta people who had ordered the apples by mail were doing the shipping, that he was acting only as their agent.

19 Teachers Attend Chemistry Institute

The two-week chemistry institute at Victoria University has attracted 19 teachers from schools throughout B.C.

Supported by a grant from the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co., the institute aims at producing research work in school chemistry classes.

"Students used to go into laboratories knowing before-hand what they were expected to find out," a spokesman said Wednesday.

"This, in effect, introduces a research approach at an earlier stage in education."

No Talk No Bop

DAVENTRY, England (UPI)—A magistrate found neighbors Mrs. Bridget Hickman and Mrs. Elvira Jones guilty of attacking each other, but paroled them Wednesday on the condition they do not speak to each other for a year.

Corrigan Rich

'Wrong Way' Right on Top

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP)—In an old barn in an orange grove near this Los Angeles suburb is an ancient airplane called Lizzie.

There was a time when it was the most photographed aircraft in North America. Getting a picture of it today is precisely as difficult as getting a picture of a unicorn.

For Month

Oceanauts Cosy Under Sea

PORT SUDAN, Sudan (AP)—Commandant Jacques-Yves Cousteau said Wednesday his seven-man team of "oceanauts" had lived for a month comfortably deep under the Red Sea in water-tight "villages" equipped with air-conditioning, closed-circuit television and telephones.

BUILD TOWNS

"Sooner or later man will live under water and build towns there," Cousteau said.

The French explorer and deep-sea diver spent his 26th wedding anniversary 45 feet under the sea with his wife Simone who went down in an aqualung to join him with a cake in a special metal container. They spent four days together in the deep.

EVALUATING

Most of his time, however, was spent on the mother ship Calypso anchored there. Those who stayed down have emerged and now are evaluating what they learned.

The men were visited daily by a doctor for physical check-ups and Wednesday Cousteau said "everybody came back in good health."

Judge's Son

'Drunk'

NEW YORK (CP)—A policeman who struggled with Judge's son Gareth Martinis says he will testify Martinis was "definitely drunk" after he was involved in an accident that killed five persons.

Patrolman Robert Sullivan, 39, received a subpoena to appear July 31 before a grand jury that could indict Martinis, 23, for vehicular homicide.

OTHER JUDGES

Martinis, son of criminal court Judge Joseph Martinis, was arrested after the May 19 accident and charged with drunken and reckless driving and leaving the scene of the accident. On July 1 three other criminal court judges acquitted him of all charges.

Sullivan, who did not testify at the trial, said he tangled with Martinis at a police station after the accident.

PHOTOGRAPHER

He found him "clutching the throat" of a photographer.

The patrolman said Martinis was biting and kicking and it was necessary to "use reasonable force" to subdue him.

"He was definitely drunk, in my opinion," Sullivan added.

New Light Thrown On Keeler Assault

LONDON (UPI)—Scotland Yard has obtained a statement from a defence witness who disappeared during the trial of West Indian Aloysius (Lucky) Gordon on charges of assaulting Christine Keeler, Gordon's attorney said Wednesday.

He identified the missing witness as Clarence Raymond (Peter) Comacchio, also a West Indian.

The statement was presumably in connection with Gordon's appeal against a three-year sentence he is serving for beating up his former girlfriend.

APPEAL GRANTED

Gordon last Monday was granted leave to appeal after a tape recording allegedly made by Miss Keeler was handed over to Scotland Yard.

It is reported to contain, among other things, evidence that a white man, and not Gordon, assaulted Miss Keeler.

The implication of this would be that Gordon was "framed."

"I understand that the police have taken a statement from Comacchio," Gordon's lawyer said. "I want to get hold of that statement." Comacchio was to have testified for the defence in Gordon's trial but disappeared.

TO SEE WITNESS

The lawyer also said he was trying to make an appointment to see John Hamilton-Marshall. He is the brother of Paula Hamilton-Marshall, a roommate of Christine's, and was a prosecution witness at Gordon's trial.

Hamilton-Marshall is known to have given a signed statement recently to Scotland Yard.

SEEKS TRANSCRIPT

The lawyer also said he hoped to get a transcript of the Keeler recording that was handed in to Scotland Yard earlier this week by her former business agent.

The recording is supposed to contain some 14 hours dictation by Christine of her life and loves. Christine has said she made the recording while "high as a kite."

Troopers Rushed To Port

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — Governor Donald Russell has ordered state troopers moved into this Atlantic port city where six policemen and a fireman were injured in racial violence Tuesday night.

Russell, promising that "law and order will be maintained in South Carolina," also placed on the alert certain unidentified National Guard units. Agents of the crack State Law Enforcement Division already were on hand.

Nearly 100 Negroes in jail as a result of violence Tuesday night refused to identify themselves to police. They were believed to include Rev. R. D. Quincey Newman, field secretary.

Rally Backed By Kennedy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy said Wednesday the planned massive Negro rally in the U.S. capital next month was in the American tradition of liberty.

But he warned against violence-marked demonstrations such as those in Cambridge, Mass.

"I have warned against demonstrations that could lead to violence, to bloodshed, I warn against it now," the president told his news conference.

Marchers Clash With Police

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chanting, singing Negro and white integration demonstrators clashed with police Wednesday night in a pushing and shoving melee in front of the Chicago board of education building.

Three demonstrators — two Negroes and one white man — were arrested. A 10-year-old Negro girl was injured when she was hurled to the sidewalk and three policemen suffered minor injuries.

B.C.'s Whopping Surprise

By TERRY HAMMOND
Colonist Legislative Reporter

The B.C. government ended its fiscal year March 31 with a whopping $40,600,000 cumulative surplus in spite of a $15,500,000 contingency not included in the 1962-63 budget.

If the province had not paid off the outstanding debt on the Agassiz, Nelson and Kelowna bridges so it could lift the tolls from them the surplus would have been $56,100,000.

All-Time Record

As it is, the surplus figure is an all-time record for B.C. and came at the end of a year in which the soundness of provincial finances was seriously questioned in certain business circles.

In his 1962 budget speech Premier Bennett forecast spending of $356,100,000 and revenue of $336,000,000.

The deficit, he stated, would be made up out of an accumulated surplus which he estimated at $20,700,000.

Spent $350,000,000

But he only spent $350,000,000 and into this he squeezed the $15,500,000 toll bridge payment which was not contemplated until the year was half over.

This means that last summer's "little austerity plan" in B.C. government circles was no myth, neither was it so little.

Cut by $21,600,000

The premier had shaved about $21,600,000 off the year's estimates.

To further sweeten the pot, Premier Bennett discovered two months after the 1962 budget speech that the cumulative surplus was not $20,700,000 as expected, but $28,700,000.

Now it turns out that his revenue prediction was on the conservative side as well. His $336,000,000 estimate turned out to be $369,900,000 in cold cash—a bonus of $25,900,000.

Picked Up Bridge Tab

So his 1962-63 "deficit" budget produced an $11,900,000 surplus and picked up the $15,500,000 tab for the bridges well.

Two Questions Remain

Two questions still remain unanswered:
● Where did the premier cut $21,600,000 from estimated expenditures?
● Where did the $25,900,000 in extra revenues spring from?

For the answers the public will have to wait for two further instalments.

Some additional details will come out at the end of this month when the annual review of provincial resources will be available. Full details won't come until August with the release of abridged public accounts.

Magnitude of the cumulative surplus was indicated in a prospectus released earlier this week in connection with a refunding issue of parity bonds.

Canoe Clue Found By RCAF

WINNIPEG (CP)—A canoe used by two missing flight cadets during their weekend fishing expedition in north-eastern Manitoba was found Wednesday on a small lake near the Ontario border, RCAF officials said.

R. J. Ursky, 22, of Wallaceburg, Ont., and O. G. Moeller, 21, of Swanville, Denmark, failed to report back to the RCAF base at Portage la Prairie.

China Hit By Typhoon

TOKYO (AP)—Typhoon Wendy hit Fukien province in Red China Wednesday, the New China News agency reported. The broadcast, monitored here, gave no damage report. Instead, it said: "The rains will be beneficial to growth of semi-late rice, late rice and other autumn crops."

Police-Army Feud Leads To Killings

VIENNA, Austria (AP)—Diplomatic sources reported Wednesday a policeman killed a soldier and, in revenge, soldiers killed seven policemen in the Soviet Ukrainian town of Krivobog. The Soviet government then imposed martial law and a curfew to prevent further bloodshed, the sources said. They said the killings took place in mid-June.

NORAD Briefing

MPs Told 'Some' Secrets

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (UPI)—A group of Canadian parliamentarians, led by Defence Minister Paul Hellyer, received an "extensive" briefing Wednesday on the operations of the North American Air Defence Command.

The group, mostly members of the House of Commons special defence committee, arrived from Ottawa and controversy over how much information they would be given during their one-day tour of NORAD headquarters.

An authoritative source said,

however, that most of the controversy was "misguided."

"These people will get a full and comprehensive briefing," he said.

Defence System Trip Also Given Soviet Spy

OTTAWA (CP)—Col. Bill Wennerstrom, arrested in Sweden as a Soviet spy for 15 years, was shown the inner workings of the North American air defence system, an informed source said Tuesday. Wennerstrom was Swedish military attaché in Washington and Ottawa and visited the Canadian capital several times a year between 1953 and 1957.

The document concerns a suit filed May 11 by Montana contractor Dick Holworth involving alleged irregularities on a Creston highway project.

Moscow Scowls

Futile Finish Is Near But What's the Score?

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet-Chinese ideological negotiations appear to be sliding toward a futile finish.

A session Wednesday was wrapped in the usual secrecy, but reports circulated that the negotiators argued about a final communiqué, which may be issued this weekend. According to one report, there will be no meeting today, but one on Friday.

None of the reports could be confirmed.

Moscow Smiles

Quick Accord Possible On Limited Test Ban

MOSCOW (AP)—Russian, British and American negotiators announced Wednesday night they have "made progress in drafting some of the provisions" for a treaty banning nuclear tests in the atmosphere, space and under water.

The announcement, set forth in a three-power communique after the third day of negotiations, gave some promise of a quick agreement on a limited test ban that might open the way for East-West security talks and possibly a summit conference.

The communique presented the first official word that the projected treaty would exclude underground tests, the detection and inspection of which are in dispute, and that the drafting stage had been reached.

The negotiating teams — led by U.S. State Undersecretary W. Averell Harriman, Science Minister Lord Hailsham of Britain and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko — met for three hours and 10 minutes Wednesday and planned to meet again today.

The apparently fast pace lent new force to prospects that with the limited test-ban agreement might come a quick easing of East-West tensions and a mutual Russian-American declaration of non-aggression.

American sources have said President Kennedy may be willing to sign such a declaration if an acceptable test-ban agreement is worked out.

A possibility that the talks had gone far enough to involve European security discussions was indicated by the unexpected arrival in Moscow of a delegation of Communist East German officials led by Lazar Bolz, deputy premier and foreign minister.

Death Car. Kills Baby

TORONTO (CP)—A 15-month-old boy was crushed to death Wednesday when a car with a dead man at the wheel tore the baby's stroller from the hands of its mother and slammed it against a pillar. Dead are Gavin Brett and William C. Carthy, 38, who died of a heart attack.

Water Board Meeting Topic

COURTENAY — A meeting of municipal and water district representatives to decide if there is general desire for a greater water board will probably be held soon as the result of a one-day seminar on water held here Wednesday.

Planners, engineers and water rights branch officials were here to discuss various aspects of water supplies, their relation to industrial development and to answer questions on greater water districts.

If the proposed meeting decides that a water district is desirable, then a feasibility report will be prepared and if a district is found to be desirable and practical, steps to set a district could be taken.

NANAIMO — In the absence of Magistrate Lionel Beevor-Potts, Mrs. G. W. Brown, J.P., presided at magistrate's court Wednesday.

Since Magistrate Beevor-Potts was appointed county magistrate last month he has had to preside at cases outside of Nanaimo. No deputy magistrate has yet been appointed to handle local cases in his absence.

Mrs. Brown fined two men $10 and costs each for being intoxicated in a public place. She also set Aug. 15 for the date for trial of Clifford White and David Bob, charged with shooting deer out of season. The two Nanaimo Indians have indicated they will cite the Indian treaty as a defence in the case.

NANAIMO — A city garbage collector was injured Tuesday afternoon when he was hit by a runaway car.

Royce Vickery was loading garbage into the rear of a city truck when a car slammed into him from behind. Vickery's condition was reported as satisfactory in Nanaimo Regional Hospital.

The car, owned by Lucien August Baril, coasted down the back lane of Milton Street. It is believed the brakes slipped.

NANAIMO — The new Salvation Army hostel will probably be completed by September.

Work on the old red brick building on Easton Street, formerly the telephone building, is progressing well. Remodelling will include sleeping quarters for 25 men, a recreation room, light lunch facilities and a thrift shop.

Around The Island

CHEMAMUS — Four accidents in this area over the weekend sent one man to hospital and caused damage estimated at more than $3,000.

At 8 p.m. Saturday, Douglas Allen, HMCS St. Therese, Esquimalt, swerved to avoid hitting a truck and rolled over three or four times to land in the ditch on the Chemainus highway, just past Oak Street. No injuries were reported.

At 3 a.m. Sunday John Hieta, of the same ship fell asleep at the wheel of his car and struck a power pole on the Trans-Canada Highway, one mile south of Mount Sicker Road. He was taken to the Chemainus General Hospital with a broken jaw, and nose, and is reported to be in fairly good condition.

The same day a vehicle driven by Terry Heppell of Duncan rolled into the ditch on the Trans-Canada Highway, 100 yards south of the Mt. Sicker Road. No one was injured.

The fourth accident took place at the Chemainus River Bridge on July 13 at 11:45 a.m. A car driven by Leroy Nelson of Duncan was sideswiped by a car crossing a double line. Again no one was hurt.

KYLUQUOT — Much amusement was caused in this village by a lengthy telegram from UFAW secretary Homer Stevens, instructing all fishermen to stay in harbor and set up picket lines. Few trollers are members of the union, and this section of the fishing industry is not on strike. Many of the west coast salmon trollers, tied up by the walkout of tendermen and shoreworkers, have already left for brief holidays while arrangements for emergency fish marketing are completed.

UCLUELET — John Bodenchuk, Thomas Bodenchuk and Harold Linklater, all Maggie Lake miners, were convicted in magistrate's court here of being in possession of stolen goods. Each was fined $100 by Magistrate J. F. Webb.

NANAIMO — Nanaimo's oldest known resident has died at the age of 102.

Mrs. Polly Johnson, 13 Macleary Street, died in Nanaimo Regional Hospital Tuesday. She was a charter member of Pythian Sisters, Silver Leaf Temple No. 1, and an active worker for the Red Cross. Mrs. Johnson, born in Yorkshire, England, had lived in Nanaimo for 72 years.

FULFORD — Tight parking conditions at Fulford hall will be eased soon when a new parking lot will be opened. The Shaw family — William, Gladys and Cree — has offered a large portion of its property west of the hall for parking facilities to be ready for Pirate Days Aug. 18.

At Ripe Age of Four

Nanaimo Girl Youngest Trainer?

SILVER SITS FOR SUSAN

By AGNES FLETCHER

NANAIMO — At the age of four years, Susan Clark of Nanaimo is perhaps the country's youngest "horse-trainer."

Lucky enough to have her own Shetland pony, she is also learning to train it.

When Susan was two her father, Walter Clark of Departure Bay, got her the pony which was then a year old — and Susan took to riding like a duck to water.

REASON

One reason Susan wanted to teach Silver, the pony, to "sit down" and "sit up" was that Silver was too high for her to climb aboard whenever she wanted to go for a ride. She couldn't see why the pony shouldn't get down so she might get up on his back.

Mr. Clark doesn't believe in saddles for tiny riders; he says they are more dangerous than bare-back riding for small children. They might catch their feet in the stirrup and be dragged.

MUCH SAFER

Bareback riding is much better, he feels. Susan "slides off" quite often, but never hurts herself.

Silver is still not completely broken to riding, nor is he quite full-grown. But he is intelligent and is fast learning the tricks his little mistress is teaching him.

Naturally her father, who works on the B.C. Government ferry out of Departure Bay, first has to show Susan how to train and teach her pony. Then Susan passes the lesson on to Silver.

She has some younger and some older sisters, but Susan is the only one who can handle Silver, who will "play dead" and let her do anything she wants with him while "dead."

When "alive," however, he's so frisky he can hardly be held in.

He's also learning to shake hands, give Susan a kiss, and roll onto his back, feet in the air, and lie still.

End-Federation Bill Approved

LONDON (Reuters) — The House of Commons passed a bill providing for the dissolution of the 10-year federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland. It now goes to the House of Lords.

Mr. Clark maintains that a pony is easier to train than a dog — and he's getting no argument from Susan or Silver.

Don't Look at Sun

Eclipse Not Big Deal on Vancouver Island

Vancouver Island residents expecting Saturday's eclipse of the sun to turn day into night, put chickens to sleep and start crickets chirping are due for a disappointment.

What will actually happen so far as this area is concerned is less impressive — only 37 per cent of the sun's surface will be obscured by the moon and the drop in light will be so slight that it will hardly be noticeable.

But, there seems a fair chance that Greater Victoria residents won't see even that much — the weather forecast is possible rain tonight and Friday morning and clouds might obscure the sky at the crucial times Saturday.

In case the sky is clear Saturday, Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, senior medical health officer of the Metropolitan Board of Health has issued a flat warning — There is no safe way to look directly at an eclipse of the sun.

He specifically warned against using smoked glasses, sun glasses, welders' goggles, exposed photographic film or pin holes in cardboard.

"Even though the dazzling rays of the sun are blocked during an eclipse, dangerous

infra-red rays are emitted and they can cause harmful burns inside the eye," he said.

"These infra-red rays act in much the same way as a magnifying glass which can burn paper by focusing the sun's rays. Because the retina of the eye is insensitive to pain the victim never realizes he has been harmed until too late.

"The television screen is a very safe and convenient way to watch as the event will be given nation-wide coverage."

Precise details of the partial eclipse as viewed from Victoria were calculated recently by the Astronomy 120 class at Victoria University and lecturer Jean K. Petrie, wife of Dr. R. M. Petrie, director of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory on Little Seach Mountain.

The class calculated the eclipse will begin in Victoria at 12:18 p.m. Saturday, increasing until 1:38 p.m. when 57 per cent of the sun's surface will be covered.

From 1:38 p.m. the moon will uncover more and more of the sun's surface until the eclipse ends at 2:50 p.m.

From a scientific point of view, the partial eclipse is of little use, Dr. Petrie said last night. Astronomers stationed at the observatory will watch the eclipse from their homes like everyone else and no recordings will be taken at the observatory.

Dr. Petrie warned that under no circumstances should anyone watch the eclipse through binoculars or a telescope.

Situation was quiet and orderly yesterday as Fresh Fish and Cold Storage Workers' men picketed B.C. Packers plant on Ogden Point waterfront. Much of time picketers sat on grassy knoll at side of access road, chatting quietly like J. H. Lewis, 2327 Trent, left, Axel Strom, 2731 Scott, and Glen Rattan, 1425 Fernwood.—(Ted Shackelford)

Seek U.S. Markets

By HARVEY SHEPHERD

Victoria independent troller fishermen have been joined by their fellows in Vancouver in determination to fish in the face of a strike which has tied up the B.C. coast fishing industry.

Richard Williams of Victoria, president of the Pacific Trollers Association, said in a statement last night that a vote by Vancouver trollers has confirmed the decision of trollers along the coast to seek other markets if employers and the striking union cannot agree on some way to let independents sell fish.

Mr. Williams left Victoria Wednesday for Seattle to investigate possibilities of selling on the United States market.

His statement said every day of the strike, fish are moving past troll fishing areas to areas fished by the gillnet fishermen who are on strike.

He said the accompanying revenue loss to troller fishermen threatens the existence of the $7,000,000 trolling industry.

Fish Plant Picketed

Meanwhile, pickets appeared at the Victoria B.C. Packers plant at Ogden Point Wednesday when shore workers brought about the final phase of the tieup of the $70,000,000-a-year coast fishing industry.

Union members said the other three main Victoria fish processing firms — C. A. Torrville's, Oakland Industries and Dennis Shellfish Company — all not unionized, also will not handle fish declared "hot" by the union.

And officials of the striking United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union denounced a "final" management offer in the strike as an ultimatum with pre-conditions amounting to insults.

Homer Stevens, general secretary of the union, in a briefing letter to Kenneth Campbell, secretary-manager of the Fisheries Association of B.C. said:

"You still seem to believe your past policy of arbitrary final offers will solve all problems."

'Final Offer' Mailed

The association last night mailed public what it termed its "final offer" in a statement mailed to all industry employees and fishermen.

The offer was for 10 cents a pound for pink salmon, down 1 1/2 cents from last year, and increases in price for other species of salmon. Plant workers and packer boat crews were offered a four-per-cent wage increase.

"The decision as to whether union members will be allowed to vote on this final offer rests with the union," the association said in a statement.

The union's letter said the union's strike and policy committee has already rejected the management move, confident their action will be supported by the membership.

The door was still open for "collective bargaining in good faith."

Boards Asking Supplementals

Two southern Vancouver Island school boards have endorsed efforts to have supplemental examinations for Grade 12 students reinstated.

Both Greater Victoria school board and the Gulf Islands school board have endorsed a resolution seeking reinstatement of the supplemental examinations. The resolution will be put before the annual meeting of the B.C. School Trustees Association.

First Victoria Vacation

Theft of Swimsuits Spoils Holiday Fun

Theft of four swimsuits from a campsite at Colwood this week has cast a gloom over a Vancouver Island vacation which had been planned for 10 years by a family from Edmonton.

Frank Weber, 40, his wife, Betty, and their four children, Gillian, 12; Jane, 8; Richard, 7, and Elaine, 1; expected to do a lot of swimming during their first trip ever made to Victoria.

They went swimming twice in the salt water at Qualicum and their suits, still wet upon arrival of the family and their holiday trailer at Colwood, were hung on a fence to dry.

Somewhere took the swimsuits belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Weber and their two oldest daughters, leaving only a pair of trunks owned by seven-year-old Richard Weber.

"I would like the despicable person who took the swimming suits to know that he spoiled the first seaside holiday that four children have ever had," said Mrs. Weber.

"I was so angry I wanted to pack up and go back to Banff," she said. But the family decided to stay here another week, despite being left high and dry.

Mr. Weber, a 40-year-old federal income tax assessor, said he has always wanted to visit Victoria. But when he got out of the air force in 1946, he bought an acre of land in Edmonton under the veterans' small holdings arrangement.

"We've been working the land until we got what we thought was a nicely landscaped garden, but it is nothing in comparison to what we have seen in Victoria," he said.

"We didn't have a holiday until eight years ago, when we started visiting the national parks. We've been wanting to make this trip for 10 years but didn't have enough travelling time."

Plans for the Vancouver Island trip finally shaped up last year, when Mr. Weber took only two of his authorized three weeks' vacation — giving him a whole month's vacation this year.

Mr. Weber said it would cost "about $25" to replace the stolen swimsuits, and "in the middle of a vacation you don't go buying swimsuits."

Apart from the fact that the family can't go swimming, they said they are having a wonderful time here and they think "this is a perfect place to spend a vacation."

They'll Go, Says Chamber

Ferry Has Bugs—But

GANGES — New Gulf Island of islands for an ideal ferry service. There are five islands, each with its own ideas and its own needs.

"With a small total population, it is hard to justify the sort of service everyone wants."

With instituting of the new B.C. Toll Authority service, Mr. Horel says the islands are now farther ahead than they've ever been.

"There's been too little time to tell how it will finally work," said chamber president C. R. Horel Wednesday.

"This is a most difficult group cost about $2,000,000; we have new wharves; we have a direct connection with Tsawwassen on the mainland—something we've lacked for a long time.

"Weekends are the big problem," Mr. Horel said, "but then they always have been. I understand cars were left behind at island points last weekend. This has always been the case on sunny or holiday weekends—on Salt Spring as well as the other islands. There have always been overloads."

Another major problem seen by Mr. Horel was providing an interest for ferry passengers—especially those on foot.

Pulp Chip Drivers Will Change Firms

DUNCAN — Drivers of Hearney Transport who, until the end of this month, will haul chips from the Youbou sawmill to the Crofton pulp mill will continue in their jobs and their union but with another firm, Arrow Steel Erectors which Tuesday signed a one-year agreement with the Local 180 IWA.

The new firm, a subsidiary of Arrow Transfer at Vancouver, a few weeks ago won a five-year chip-hauling contract with B.C. Forest Products.

When the news broke about the contract change strife between the teamster union and the IWA was feared as the Vancouver firm has an agreement with the former. A total of 50 tenders for the contract had been submitted.

The contract is believed to involve a gross sum of about $1,000,000.

Leaders of Future Meet in Kootenays

By KLAUS MUENTER

DUNCAN—Last week was a highlight in the lives of 80 young British Columbians when they gathered for the annual 4-H Provincial Club week in the serene beauty of New Denver at Sloan Lake, some 150 miles north of Grand Forks in the West Kootenays.

For eight days the former hospital for Japanese during the last war and later the boarding school for Doukhobor children was the centre of study, competition and laughter of youngsters from an area from the Peace River to Vancouver Island and from Smithers to Cranbrook.

The event was jointly organized by the provincial and federal departments of agriculture with a staff of 15 consisting of: Sig Peterson, Victoria; Miss Lorna Michael, Victoria; Miss Carol Groves, Victoria; Arnold Allan, Dawson Creek; John Corner, Vernon; George Cruickshank, Chilliwack; Fraser Carmichael, Grand Forks; Pete Ewert, Mission; Ken Jamieson, Duncan; John Kneale, Vancouver; Al Pelier, Smithers; Mr. Shirley Preston, Prince George; Jerry Supene, Abbotsford; Ted Swales, Creston; and Dr. E. A. Bala, New Denver.

It was the second time that the large compound has been the headquarters for the annual event, moving there from Tranquille near Kamloops, and it is only eight years since the character of the 4-H club week took on the present scheme of leadership.

Before it was a week of livestock judging, Ken Jamieson, district agriculturist at Duncan and 4-H supervisor on South-ern Vancouver Island, who headed his group of eight youngsters from Seash and Laxton, said, "The gathering represented our province's outstanding senior 4-H members leadership is more important and potential leaders who will than just judging of livestock, in due course become the winners also won awards to the Royal Winter Fair at Toronto where they finally competed on a national basis.

Work to Start Soon On Gabriola Ferry

NANAIMO—Work will begin immediately on construction of a new 110-foot ferry for the Nanaimo-Gabriola service.

The highways department announced Wednesday that the contract totalling $179,877 has been awarded to McKenzie Barge and Derrick Ltd. of Vancouver. The new steel ferry will take over from the Eena which has proved too small to handle the steady flow of tourists and Gabriola residents in recent months.

Troopers Rushed To Port

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — Governor Donald Russell has ordered state troopers moved into this Atlantic port city where six policemen and a fireman were injured in racial violence Tuesday night.

Russell, promising that "law and order will be maintained in South Carolina," also placed on the alert certain unidentified National Guard units. Agents of the crack State Law Enforcement Division already were on hand.

Nearly 100 Negroes in jail as a result of violence Tuesday night refused to identify themselves to police. They were believed to include Rev. R. DeQuincy Newman, field secretary.

Rally Backed By Kennedy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy said Wednesday the planned massive Negro rally in the U.S. capital next month was in the American tradition of liberty.

But he warned against violence-marked demonstrations such as those in Cambridge, Md.

"I have warned against demonstrations that could lead to violence, to bloodshed, I warn against it now," the president told his news conference.

Marchers Clash With Police

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chanting, singing Negro and white integration demonstrators clashed with police Wednesday night in a pushing and shoving melee in front of the Chicago board of education building.

Three demonstrators — two Negroes and one white man — were arrested. A 10-year-old Negro girl was injured when she was hurled to the sidewalk and three policemen suffered minor injuries.

$40,000,000 SURPLUS WHOPPING SURPRISE

By TERRY HAMMOND
Colonist Legislative Reporter

The B.C. government ended its fiscal year March 31 with a whopping $40,600,000 cumulative surplus in spite of a $15,500,000 contingency not included in the 1962-63 budget.

If the province had not paid off the outstanding debt on the Agassiz, Nelson and Kelowna bridges so it could lift the tolls from them the surplus would have been $56,100,000.

All-Time Record

As it is, the surplus figure is an all-time record for B.C. and came at the end of a year in which the soundness of provincial finances was seriously questioned in certain business circles.

In his 1962 budget speech Premier Bennett forecast spending of $356,100,000 and revenue of $336,000,000.

The deficit, he stated, would be made up out of an accumulated surplus which he estimated at $20,700,000.

Spent $350,000,000

But he only spent $350,000,000 and into this he squeezed the $15,500,000 toll bridge payment which was not contemplated until the year was half over.

This means that last summer's "little austerity plan" in B.C. government circles was no myth, neither was it so little.

Cut by $21,600,000

The premier had shaved about $21,600,000 off the year's estimates.

To further sweeten the pot, Premier Bennett discovered two months after the 1962 budget speech that the cumulative surplus was not $20,700,000 as expected, but $28,700,000.

Now it turns out that his revenue prediction was on the conservative side as well. His $336,000,000 estimate turned out to be $369,900,000 in cold cash—a bonus of $25,900,000.

Picked Up Bridge Tab

So his 1962-63 "deficit" budget produced an $11,900,000 surplus and picked up the $15,500,000 tab for the bridges as well.

Two Questions Remain

Two questions still remain unanswered:

● Where did the premier cut $21,600,000 from estimated expenditures?

● Where did the $25,900,000 in extra revenues spring from?

For the answers the public will have to wait for two further instalments.

Some additional details will come out at the end of this month when the annual review of provincial resources will be available. Full details won't come until August with the release of abridged public accounts.

Magnitude of the cumulative surplus was indicated in a prospectus released earlier this week in connection with a refunding issue of parity bonds.

Gaglardi Keeping Ahead of Sheriff

Take it from Sheriff Eric Wilkinson—Highways Minister Philip Gaglardi is a hard man to catch.

Wilkinson, sheriff of Victoria County, says he's been trying to serve Gaglardi a legal document for nearly two months.

"But he's been out of town or tied up. He's a very busy man."

The document concerns a suit filed May 11 by Montana contractor Dick Holmworth involving alleged irregularities on a Creston highway project.

Futile Finish Is Near But What's the Score?

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet-Chinese ideological negotiations appear to be sliding toward a futile finish.

A session Wednesday was wrapped in the usual secrecy, but reports circulated that the negotiators argued about a final communique, which may be issued this weekend. According to one report, there will be no meeting today, but one on Friday.

None of the reports could be confirmed.

Moscow Smiles

Quick Accord Possible On Limited Test Ban

MOSCOW (AP)—Russian, British and American negotiators announced Wednesday night they have "made progress in drafting some of the provisions" for a treaty banning nuclear tests in the atmosphere, space and under water.

The announcement, set forth in a three-power communique after the third day of negotiations, gave some promise of a quick agreement on a limited test ban that might open the way for East-West security talks and possibly a summit conference.

The communique presented the first official word that the projected treaty would exclude underground tests, the detection and inspection of which are in dispute, and that the drafting stage had been reached. The negotiating teams—led by U.S. State Undersecretary W. Averell Harriman, Science Minister Lord Hailsham of Britain and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko—met for three hours and 10 minutes Wednesday and planned to meet again today.

The apparently fast pace lent new force to prospects that with the limited test-ban agreement might come a quick easing of East-West tensions and a mutual Russian-American declaration of non-aggression.

American sources have said President Kennedy may be willing to sign such a declaration if an acceptable test-ban agreement is worked out.

A possibility that the talks had gone far enough to involve European security discussions was indicated by the expected arrival in Moscow of a delegation of Communist East German officials led by Lotar Bohm, deputy premier and foreign minister.

Death Car Kills Baby

TORONTO (CP)—A 15-month-old boy was crushed to death Wednesday when a car with a dead man at the wheel tore the baby's stroller from the hands of its mother and slammed it against a pillar. Dead are Gavin Brett and William C. Carthy, 38, who died of a heart attack.

BULLETIN

Three people were taken to hospital, one believed in critical condition, following a head-on crash early today on the Patricia Bay highway near Keating Cross Road.

Central Saanich police had not released names of the victims at press time, but it was understood the seriously hurt man was driving alone in one car and a man and his wife were in the other.

All were taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital.

VIENNA, Austria (AP)

—Diplomatic sources reported Wednesday a policeman killed a soldier and, in revenge, soldiers killed seven policemen in the Soviet Ukrainian town of Krivul Bog. The Soviet government then imposed martial law and a curfew to prevent further bloodshed, the sources said. They said the killings took place in mid-June.

U.S. AND ASKED
The courier, Rev. Le Van Hoa, delivered a letter to Nolting from the Buddhist Association complaining of "police brutality against innocent civilians" and asking the U.S. government to intercede.

When the monk left the embassy, three plainclothes policemen tried to whisk him away in a cab. The monk evaded them and ran back toward the embassy. Near the gate, a uniformed policeman grabbed him. An American official intervened, dragging along both the monk and the policeman. A U.S. Marine guard peeled the policeman from the monk's back. The embassy assigned escorts to accompany the monk back to his pagoda.

Buddhist leaders have called on all South Vietnamese Buddhists to join the monk's protest.

MPs Told 'Some' Secrets

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (UPI) — A group of Canadian parliamentarians, led by Defence Minister Paul Hellyer, received an "extensive" briefing Wednesday on the operations of the North American Air Defence Command.

The group, mostly members of the House of Commons special defence committee, arrived from Ottawa amid controversy over how much information they would be given during their one-day tour of NORAD headquarters.

Defence System Trip Also Given Soviet Spy

OTTAWA (CP)—Col. Sig Wennerstrom, arrested in Sweden as a Soviet spy for 15 years, was shown the inner workings of the North American air defence system, an informed source said Tuesday. Wennerstrom was Swedish military attaché in Washington and Ottawa and visited the Canadian capital several times a year between 1952 and 1957.

Dispute 'Misguided'

One committee member, New Democrat Harold Winch, had complained the group would be denied "secret" information which he felt was necessary for its probe into Canadian defence policy.

There were reports that NORAD officers might withhold some information because the Canadians had not undergone a formal security check. In Ottawa, however, Secretary of State J. W. Pickersgill said there was no question of imposing such a check on members of Parliament.
